

Two Offers For New City Hall

Mayor Promises Serious Study

A Vancouver firm has offered to build a combined $2,100,000 eight-story city hall and office building for Victoria.

The development in plans for a new City Hall came Thursday when Marwell Construction Company submitted to city council a proposal for constructing a modern, functional reinforced concrete structure.

At the same time Dominion Construction Co., also of Vancouver, notified council it is preparing a new offer for construction of a $1,800,000 city hall.

Dominion Construction is the firm which offered a year ago to build a city hall at Blanshard and Courtney.

Mayor Percy Scourrah said today both proposals will be given serious consideration before council reaches any decision.

ON LEASE

The Marwell Construction Co. offers a new city hall on a lease basis.

Hugh Martin, president, said the present City Hall would be demolished and the eight-story structure erected on the same site.

"It would be the first major office building constructed in downtown Victoria in the past three decades," he said. "The building would be designed and tailored primarily to meet the requirements of a City Hall and would also provide about 8,000 square feet of shop area."

"In addition, it would have four floors of office space for commercial and financial organizations," he said.

VICTORIANS

Mr. Martin named George Wheaton as local contractor, R. W. Siddall of Victoria, as architect, and Milton King as broker.

The proposal as outlined by Mr. Martin calls for the development company to purchase the present city hall site for about $135,000.

When constructed, the city would lease the entire building at a rental rate of about $165,000 a year.

The city at the same time would agree to lease back to the company at the same rate the shop and private office space.

Gross costs to the city to rent about 30,040 square feet of city hall space would be $102,424, he said.

UNDER $30,000

But he added the "net cost to the city, taking into account tax revenue from the property, maintenance and operations savings, and interest in the price paid for the property, would be less than $30,000 a year."

He explained that private tenants in the building would be subsidizing the city offices by paying higher rates than the city.

"In effect, the city would be paying per square foot of space less than some warehouses in Vancouver," he said.

Under the agreement, the city would take on financial responsibility if the development company could not meet mortgage payments on money borrowed to build the structure.

SOUND PLAN

But Mr. Martin said such a situation was "inconceivable." "This program for financing is extremely sound, since the revenue derived from reasonable rental rates is more than adequate to cover debt repayment and operating expenses."

He said the company could only go broke if it was impossible to rent the office space. He saw no possibility of this happening, even in hard times. Mr. Martin said if the occasion ever arose that the city wanted to build a large centre, it would be able to terminate its lease.

BUY BUILDING

It would also have the right in seven years to buy the building at a fair appraised price.

He said one of the advantages of a large building with

S. Africa Warns Of K's Threats

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—South Africa's foreign secretary, Eric H. Louw, soberly warned the UN General Assembly today Premier Khrushchev's attacks on the UN structure may not be idle threats.

He also declared South Africa is concerned about what he termed Communist penetration in the continent of Africa and Communist-inspired activity in his own country.

Most of his policy statement was devoted to lashing back bitterly at the 41 countries that have demanded a UN inquiry into charges of South African race discrimination, chiefly India.

"They do not come into court with clean hands," Louw said, reciting charges of discrimination against races and minorities he said prevails in India, Norway, Sweden, Liberia, Ghana, Saudi Arabia and other African and Middle East countries.

CUBA RECALLS MIAMI CONSUL AFTER ATTACK

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Cuba recalled its consul-general from Miami today in the wake of violent outbursts against the Fidel Castro regime by Cuban exiles here.

The consul-general, Abelardo Leon Blanco, was taken to hospital after a band of Cubans swarmed through his office, smashed the furniture and beat him Thursday. He was released after treatment.

This and other incidents followed the execution of 13 men, including an American, by Castro's firing squads.

OTTAWA BOOSTS VALUATION

Foreign Cars to Cost More

By VICTOR J. MACKIE (Times Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA—Prices of British and European cars imported into Canada after Dec. 1 will go up as a result of a decision by the department of national revenue.

The increase for imported European cars will be slightly higher than that for British cars.

Effective Dec. 1 the national revenue department will increase the valuation of such imported cars leading to higher duties and taxes.

It has been estimated that on a European car with a list selling price at home of $1,500 the higher valuation could mean an increase in Canadian duty of about $80. Department officials however declined to confirm that estimate.

The new price tag on a small British car might go up by $30. The fact that the small British cars enter Canada duty free accounts for the difference.

There is a 17½ per cent Canadian tariff applied against German, French, Italian and other European car imports.

This is a move towards greater protection from foreign competition for the Canadian automobile industry.

It was made by the department in the course of its regular duties of re-examining valuations and fixing them higher or lower as the case may be in regard to the product's home market.

382 Firms Taken Over By Castro

Seizure Spares Canadian Banks

HAVANA (Reuters)—The Cuban government, in a sweeping new nationalization measure, today took over all banks in Cuba except the Royal Bank of Canada and the Bank of Nova Scotia.

A total of 382 companies were brought under state control under the new order, including American-owned banks and scores of other companies and 105 Cuban-owned sugar mills.

It was announced that Premier Fidel Castro will address the nation Saturday to explain why the nationalization laws were adopted.

NO IMMEDIATE REASON

There was no explanation immediately why the Canadian banking operations were exempted although a spokesman for the Royal Bank in Montreal said it might be to show that the Cuban government is opposed only to American capital having a stake in the country.

The nationalized banks will operate from now on as "agencies" of the Cuban Banco Nacional.

The law nationalizing the banks said:

"It is essential to transform the old banking structure of the nation and adapt it to new conditions of economic development created as a result of the revolutionary process."

ONLY 2 CANADIAN

The Royal Bank and the Bank of Nova Scotia are the only Canadian-owned ones with operations in Cuba. The Royal has 23 branches and the Bank of Nova Scotia eight.

The Bank of Nova Scotia which opened its first branch in Havana in 1906, employs a staff of about 250, of whom 96 per cent are Cuban. All but two of the eight managers are Cubans.

This was the first nationalization of Cuban-owned property, but the government previously had nationalized the bulk of U.S. investments in the country, including 36 sugar mills and banks, estimated to be worth a total of $1,000,000,000.

The new nationalization decree includes 50 textile factories, eight railways, 11 movie chains, 13 department stores, 16 rice mills, six distilleries and 11 coffee companies. Many had been intervened—that is, taken at least partially under government control—previously.

U.S. firms included in the decree included Dupont Inter-America Chemical Company, Pittsburgh Plate Glass International and Bohon Trading Corporation, which manufactures paper.

The U.S. embassy said about 20 U.S.-owned firms were affected.

MR. K. HOME SAFELY, FULL OF GOOD HUMOR

MOSCOW (Reuters)—Nikita Khrushchev returned to Moscow from the United Nations today, bubbling over with good humor and warm greetings for Communist Party leaders who met him at the airport.

Within minutes of his return, after an absence of 35 days, the Russian premier held an impromptu meeting on the airport runway with members of the Soviet Communist Party presidium.

EX-PREMIER IN DOCK

Turk Treason Trials Begin

YASSIADA ISLAND, Turkey (Reuters)—Adnan Menderes, ousted Turkish premier on trial for his life, appeared in court here today and complained haltingly in a weak voice that he had been kept incommunicado in a single room since his arrest.

The prosecution demanded death for Menderes and 36 others as a mass treason trial of 500 members of the ousted regime opened in this island fortress under a strict security blanket.

"For five months I have lived in a single room under constant guard," Menderes said. "I have spoken to no one except the investigating commission. One can't talk to one guard."

WANT LAWYERS HELP

Several of the accused complained they were given no opportunity to see lawyers.

More than 600 spectators crowded into the court room, a converted sports hall, to hear massive indictments against the prisoners—including Burhan Belge, a former deputy, and first husband of movie star Zsa Zsa Gabor.

The prisoners face charges of abusing Turkey's constitution, misusing state funds and political corruption arising out of the Bayar-Menderes regime which ended its stormy 10-year rule in a blood-free army coup last May.

Details of the charge sheets issued Thursday show that Menderes is facing 10 charges, on three of which the punishment on conviction could be death.

SUICIDE ATTEMPTS

Bayar, 77, an economist and veteran politician, is reported to have twice made suicide attempts since his arrest by army officers in the uprisings which brought Gen. Cemal Gursel to power.

Intense public interest has built up over the trial. The Turkish press had billed it "the greatest since Nuernberg"—where Nazi leaders were tried for war crimes.

The eight-member supreme court has the power to issue a judgment against which there is no appeal, but where the sentence is death. Gen. Gursel's national unity committee must confirm it before execution.

Police Smash Riot in Congo

LEOPOLDVILLE (Reuters)—About a dozen persons were injured today by police breaking up a demonstration of some 300 pro-Lumumba Congolese near Leopoldville's United Nations building.

Police used rifle butts, sticks and their boots to disperse the demonstrators, followers of ousted premier Patrice Lumumba who also were parading in support of the UN.

Later a gang of young Lumumba supporters attacked Albert Ndele, a member of the provisional Congolese government in the centre of Leopoldville and tried to lynch him.

Plan Advanced For Conference Later in Month

By TOM GOULD (Times Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA—The federal government has asked the provinces to consider a tax collection system that would enable each provincial government to set its own rate of personal and corporate income tax.

Such a system has been advanced as an alternative to the present tax rental agreements, under which Ottawa alone sets the rate of taxation for all of Canada.

One official said initial reaction of the provinces is "quite cool."

In line with stated government policy, the principle of "equalization" would be maintained by the federal government under a tax collection system, utilizing taxes levied by Ottawa for its own purposes, an official said.

The plan was first set forth at a meeting of provincial and federal tax experts in Banff late last month by representatives of the federal finance department. The experts constitute a continuing committee handling the spadework for the 10 provincial governments and the federal government.

Finance Minister Donald Fleming will elaborate when the federal-provincial conference reconvenes the week of October 24.

A tax collection system is not a new concept. It was raised, and rejected, at the 1955 federal-provincial conference. And, at one time, Ottawa acted as the collection agency for the province of Ontario.

In effect the plan would mean a partial return to the prewar system of both federal and provincial income taxes. The difference, however, would be that taxpayers would make out only one set of returns instead of two, as they did then.

Under the present system Ottawa decides what the income tax levy should be, then returns a certain amount of it to the provinces under a complicated formula.

OTTAWA STANDARD

Here is how the proposed plan would work.

First, Ottawa would insist on a standard tax basis. To make the plan work easily, deduction levels would have to be the same in all provinces. The federal government would then determine what percentage of tax it would require to meet its responsibilities. Assume this percentage to be 20 per cent of a $10,000 income, or $2,000.

A particular province would decide it needed 5 per cent of a $10,000 income, or $500, and enact income tax legislation.

Ottawa would act as the sole collection agency. It would collect a total 25 per cent from

Open Mind

B.C. government officials today were cautious about comment on the possibility of a new income tax system.

It's no secret, however, that the province prefers to maintain the present tax levying and collection system. Both amount of tax and collection are handled by Ottawa.

That taxpayers are protected by the present system from "overlapping" of taxes.

However, B.C. will go into the fiscal conference with an open mind on any suggestions from Ottawa.

'MAN OF WAR'

Cuba Woman Delegate Quits Castro

NEW YORK (AP)—A woman of the Cuban delegation to the United Nations quit her post today, saying Premier Fidel Castro had turned her country into a police state where the people were living under a reign of terror.

Miss Teresa Casuso, once one of Castro's most enthusiastic supporters, said she had written the revolutionary leader a 15-page letter telling him what she now thought.

To reporters in her apartment Miss Casuso asserted that Castro's "mind and soul have been affected."

"He became embittered with great resentment against the United States because of help they were giving at the last minute to Batista and everything that smelled American was to him something hateful," Miss Casuso said.

One of three members of the delegation given the rank of ambassador by Cuba, Miss Casuso acknowledged that she had lived most of her life outside her country.

But she said her father and mother were living in Cuba, and that she feared for their safety.

Miss Casuso described Castro as a "man of war."

"He has to be at war with everybody—with the world—because he's at war with himself," she said.

Ike Roving Envoy

NEW YORK (AP)—President Eisenhower has agreed to serve as a roving ambassador if Vice-President Nixon is elected president, it was reported today.

The New York Herald Tribune carried the report in dispatches from Washington.

Nixon is on a campaign tour. White House press secretary James C. Hagerty said in Washington that he had never heard anything about a roving ambassadorship and that he had no comment.

44 More Agents to Police Jobless Fraud Cases

By VICTOR MACKIE (Times Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA—A 50 per cent increase has been authorized in the investigation and enforcement division of the Unemployment Insurance Commission to try and stamp out fraud.

Approval has been given by the Treasury Board to a special estimate of the Labor department to provide for the salaries of an additional 44 investigators.

The Civil Service Commission is preparing to call applicants for examination.

This will increase the strength of the enforcement division's "police force" from 78 to 122 agents.

Officials said they were determined to root out fraud.

The enforcement division last year in 73,547 investigations recovered $2,000,000 in fraudulent unemployment insurance claims.

This was "only scratching

the surface," said division officials.

But with only 74 investigators covering all Canada the enforcement officers have admitted they were "swamped."

They got Labor Minister Michael Starr's quick approval for a 50-per-cent increase in staff.

The unemployment insurance was being drained of about $20,000,000 annually through fraudulent practices, it was estimated here.

ROME NEVER PRESSED ST. LAURENT AS PM

TORONTO (UPI)—Former Canadian prime minister Louis St. Laurent said today the Roman Catholic hierarchy never once tried to "pressure" him in making state decisions.

He said in an interview with the Toronto Telegram he never would have accepted the office if he had felt that because he was a Catholic he would have been unable to make decisions free of religious influence.

Stressing that, "I don't want to express an opinion on how the United States people should vote," St. Laurent told the Telegram, "I can say that there never was the slightest attempt to influence me, because I was a Catholic while I was prime minister."

... TAXES

Continued from Page 1—come tax in a province and a the $10,000 wage-earner, and higher sales tax?" return 5 per cent, or $500, less So far, Ottawa appears at a servicing charge, to the most totally unprepared for the re-opening of the federal provincial tax conference.

A federal official said one advantage of this plan, as opposed to tax rental agreements, is that they place the blame directly on the level of government imposing the tax.

It would also assert the province's right, under the BNA Act, to impose personal and corporate income taxes, and would give them a broader tax base.

Among the disadvantages: such a tax collection system could result in a different level of income taxation in each province.

To this, one federal official said "for some reason, there has been a reluctance to have varying levels of income taxation in Canada, but it is more psychological than anything else. What difference is there between a higher rate of in-

BLUE JEANS Some of the sharp practices uncovered by investigators that have proved costly for the fund are:

(1)—A secretary earning $70 leaving her job to get married can, by pleading inability to get another job, collect $27 weekly for 51 weeks. If the National Employment Service office arranges any job interviews for her she need only appear in blue jeans and hair curlers and do a poor typing job to fail to get the job.

(2)—A salesman earning $100 retiring at 65 can add $36 weekly to his pension for the first year by declaring simply that he is able to work and then turning down proffered job offers as unsuitable.

$7306 ANNUALLY (3)—An unemployed tradesman can earn as much as $7,500 a year while collecting unemployment insurance as demonstrated by a carpenter. He collected $36 weekly in jobless benefits, earned $16.50 working one day each week (up to $18 is permitted) and spent the other week-days building a house that he sold for a profit of $4,860.

Tokyo Demonstration TOKYO (Reuters)—About 8,000 demonstrators marched through downtown Tokyo tonight in an orderly protest against the assassination of Socialist chief Inejiro Asanuma two days ago.

Recently a public opinion survey disclosed that 22 per cent of Canadians consider that anyone who has contributed to the fund is entitled, when out of work, to draw benefits even when refusing offers of other jobs as "not acceptable."

A $2,100,000 EIGHT-STOREY building along lines of this sketch would accommodate both new city hall, offices and stores, if city council accepted offer of Marwell Construction of Vancouver. Building would be erected on present city hall site. It would be leased by city. Offices would subsidize rent of city hall space.

... CITY HALL

"It could take over, whenever it so desired, the private offices to meet its requirements," he said.

He emphasized that the building should be well-designed—one which would enhance the valuation of adjoining properties.

MORE TONE "The city has everything to gain by having a prestige building as it would bring up property values and enhance the tone of the area," he said.

The building's main entrance would be on Pandora, with a secondary entrance on Cormorant Street. Retail stores would face on Douglas Street and each would have separate entrances.

He said adequate parking facilities could be provided on property owned by the city immediately across Cormorant Street.

Building management and attendant labor problems would not be the responsibility of the city, he said.

Mr. Martin noted the present City Hall was expensive to maintain. "A new modern building would result in more efficiency," he said. "There would be better working conditions and less loss of time."

The majority of aldermen feel the Marwell proposal has merit, but want further study.

One of the questions which will have to be answered, they said, is whether the demand for office space warrants such a large building.

This would mean a study of office requirements in the city.

Failure to rent most of the offices, they pointed out, would result in a financial problem.

With regard to the new offer of the Dominion Construction Co., R. G. Bentall, vice-president, said today plans would be submitted to the city in the near future.

Mayor Scurrah said it was only fair to consider the Dominion proposal, as the firm spent a considerable amount of money preparing its first offer.

KHRUSHCHEV'S LEGACY

Echo of Ugly Words Lingers in UN Halls

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—Nikita S. Khrushchev has gone from the United Nations but the echoes of his thunder linger on.

The Soviet leader, tasting defeat and victory, flew home to Moscow after giving an other verbal walloping to the 15th General Assembly Thursday night.

Practically nothing in the West escaped Khrushchev's denunciation during his 25-day stay. Canada was aghast at being called a "colonizer." Britain was called an imperialist blood-sucker. And the United States had taken the world a step beyond the brink of war, according to Khrushchev.

President Eisenhower, by implication, was a fool, as was UN Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld. The UN Security Council was a "splittoon." The West imbued disarmament negotiations with such a stench that "no honest man can breathe."

Work Now Possible

U.S. Ambassador James J. Wadsworth, after Khrushchev's valedictory, said that perhaps eventually "the thunder will go away and the assembly can get down to work."

Khrushchev threatened to wreck the UN—he repeated the threat in his final appearances on the UN rostrum—and pictured Russia as the savior of emerging countries whose people are black.

In one remark he said it didn't matter whether the skins of people were black, what mattered was whether the color of their souls was "black—or dirty."

He was defeated on his ideas of disarmament, he won on colonialism and lost again on his charges of air-spying aggression by the U.S. All votes were on procedural issues.

Departing from New York's Idlewild Airport Thursday night, Khrushchev claimed a Newfoundland, like Ireland, is free of snakes because there may be some element in the soil that snakes dislike.

German "czars," he left the implication that Eisenhower in his opinion was a fool.

Specifically, the last argument Thursday was about whether the Soviet's charge that U.S. reconnaissance flights were aggression—and should be debated in assembly plenary rather than in committee.

"We are leaving in a good mood," he said, adding that there are signs "which allow us to hope for solutions of the major international problems through the United Nations organization, and through this session of the General Assembly."

There were needlepricks of irritation during his stay. A crew member from the ship on which he arrived defected to the West. Most new African nations in the 99-member assembly turned their backs on Khrushchev when the roll call was taken on procedural issues which he himself built into East-West prestige items.

Khrushchev's movements were limited by U.S. order during his stay of almost four weeks at the UN, but he said he was thankful for the courtesy extended to him by New Yorkers.

In his final speech to the assembly, he said Hammarskjöld is a fool and a tool of imperialists.

Launching into an involved parable about Russian and

Britain Rebuffed

Britain's David Ormsby-Gore tried to keep Khrushchev on the procedural track in later debate but was rebuffed by Khrushchev, who said that the British were wrong when they considered their island an "unsinkable aircraft carrier." It could be demolished by Soviet rockets.

Eggs in One Basket

LAST YEAR UNITED STATES markets took about 40 per cent of British Columbia's lumber production. The Canadian domestic market took about 32. The United Kingdom absorbed 15.6 per cent and the destination of 13 per cent was not reported.

For the first half of this year, sales to the United States will probably amount to about 40 per cent again. When the second half figures are compiled, say informed members of the industry, the percentage sold to the United States will be down substantially. An increase in sales to Britain will not balance the loss.

The United States sales will be down, they explain, because British Columbia's lumber industry cannot afford to sell at prices now offered in the United States for volume business. Special lines still find customers. The bread-and-butter exports to that country do not now command enough to justify shipment.

This is a depressing picture set in the frame of a provincial economy which depends on the forest industries for about half of every dollar produced in B.C.

Lumber at present represents roughly 50 per cent of the product from forest industries. The other half is made up of pulp and paper.

The picture is not all black and white. In simple lines, however, it takes this form: British Columbia, with a wealth of the raw material for forest industries, remains a high-cost producer. Its cost are such that few countries outside the United States can afford to buy from us. In consequence the United States has not only become our best customer, but tomer.

We have, by our costs, placed most of our eggs in one basket. The bottom of that basket has been weakened. It no longer carries so many eggs. But we have few opportunities to sell elsewhere because in other outside markets our price is beaten by competitors.

If home building picks up in the United States as well as in Canada, the situation will be considerably relieved. Unless it does, the immediate future for B.C. lumber does not look bright. It does not look bright in spite of an upward movement in sales to the United Kingdom.

The export business to Britain is greatly assisted at the moment by sales efforts of the industry and of B.C. House in London as well as by a surplus of shipping which reduces water transport costs. Cheap water haul, however, could become more expensive in short order if vessels now looking for business found a cargo more lucrative than our lumber. And at all events, the British market, important though it is, does not rival that of the United States.

Pulp and paper sales are not suffering to the same degree. But at this point they represent only half the output from our forests.

These are some of the hard facts of economic life facing British Columbia's chief industry. As long as we are high-cost producers we are at a disadvantage in a field growing more competitive all the time.

The improvement of our technical skills—already a model for most parts of the world engaged in forest industries—can be expected to enhance our competitive position. But we have neither a monopoly on wood nor on brains. Other nations can be expected to improve their methods also.

The point that must be constantly before the industry is that it is forced, by outside competition, to provide a good product at a price prospective customers will pay.

Labor's interest in that problem is obvious. It can receive no benefits at all from the highest wage scale in the country's wood-working industries if there is insufficient demand to provide jobs and the pay envelopes that go with them.

Horses and Humans

AFTER TWO WEEKS OF RACING, Sandown track closed down with a record betting of $954,733. After two weeks of campaigning, the Community Chest has received $65,000.

Horse racing, of course, is primarily concerned with "improving the breed." The Chest is concerned with improving the lot of the sick, the halt, the lame and the blind.

The question seems to be this: will we ever learn to gamble on humans as we do on horses?

Atavism of Violence

JAPAN'S SOCIALIST PARTY leader, Mr. Inejiro Asanuma had not been considered a friend of the Western World. He represented the left in political activity in his homeland and had been considered one of the individuals responsible for trouble which led to the cancellation of the Eisenhower visit this year.

Yet it has come as a shock to people of the Western World that he was removed from the political scene by assassination.

His killer was a youth of 17—an age not usually considered highly responsible, but an age, also, at which a person should know right from wrong and appreciate the unacceptability in the present day of the tradition of political assassination.

Incidents of this nature remind us that the shrinking world is bringing up closer every day to peoples whose concepts are completely different from those we honor. A Japanese teenager has stepped out of an age many thought was far in the past to use the weapon of political assassination once relatively common among his people.

This, unhappily, is one of the shocks we may expect to suffer in an era when civilizations are being rocketed into a modern world so quickly they cannot discard entirely the garments of a more primitive society familiar to them.

Yet, if we are repelled by this development, we need only recall the other incident a few days ago when a drunken young man equipped with a home-made bomb was captured while he sought "only to get Khrushchev." Perhaps we are not so far removed from the repugnant violence of an earlier time as we had thought—a point which Hitler did his utmost to prove.

Long Beach for the Public

THE PUBLIC INTEREST IS well served by the provincial order-in-council reserving the Long Beach foreshore for public use.

This means that a widely-publicized stretch of ocean front will not be alienated, as is so much of the Island coastline, by private interests.

Public funds and public concessions to timber operators have gone into the construction of the access road to Long Beach. The ultimate beneficiaries of that access road should be the people.

White Galoshes for Safety

FROM NOW, UNTIL NEXT spring, Victoria can expect its share of rain on evenings of early darkness. That is a combination which presents car drivers with additional hazards. It is a combination, also, which carries a particular threat for older pedestrians whose sombre clothing helps to camouflage them as they cross black streets.

The danger to the latter can be reduced if they wear something light in color, something that will provide a contrast against the dark background.

Why not a new style to encourage older people to wear white galoshes? Children and some women wear them and look neat in that footwear. Why not all older folk who are less agile in the crosswalks and whose conventional dress so seldom produces a bright touch that can be a warning to a motorist in the night-time rain?

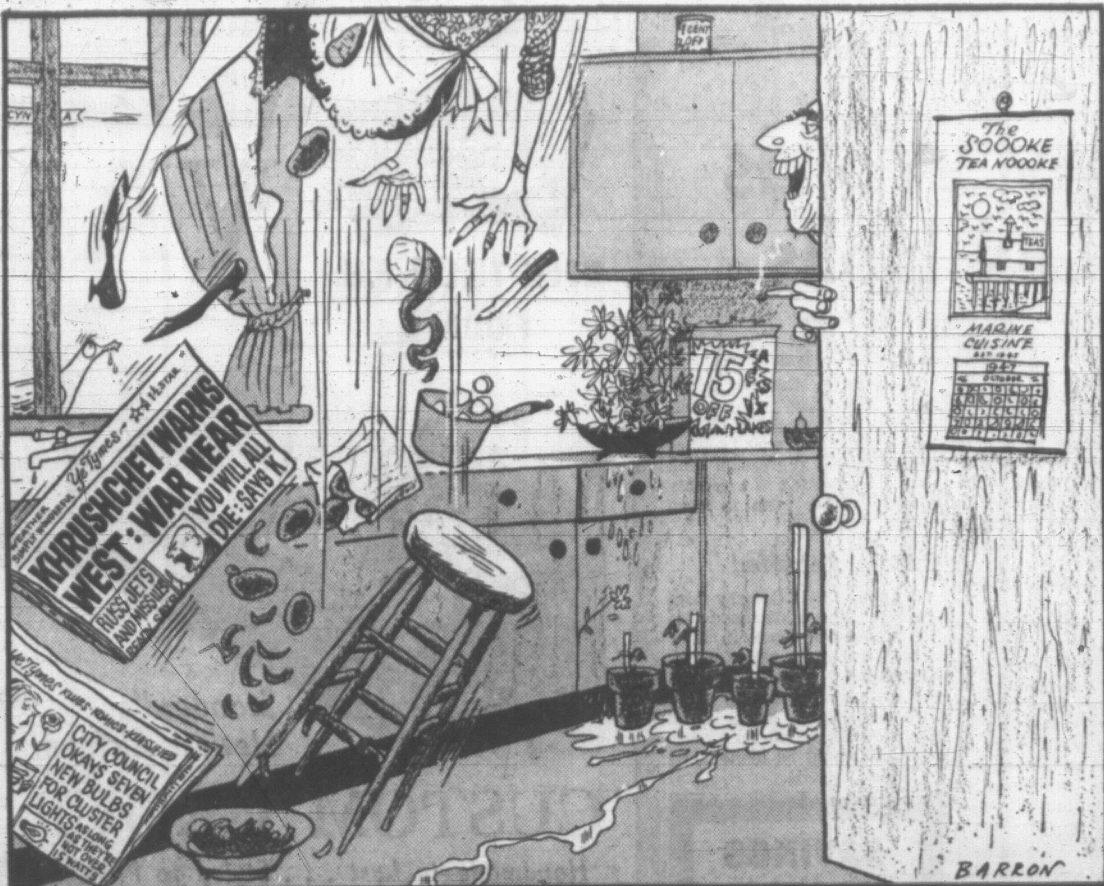

The Final Word

THE CURRENT SITTING OF the United Nations Assembly has been by far the most tumultuous in its history. The uproar caused by Mr. Khrushchev, and the verbal retaliation he invited, kept the gathering in a state of excitement and no little apprehension.

But in all the vocal fireworks, it is interesting to note that when it came to the expression of real feelings, resort had to be made to the simplest of statements.

"We don't like you," said a Spanish delegate when Mr. Khrushchev attacked his country. "I don't like you," said Mr. Khrushchev when photographers caught him in an unflattering pose.

There is something fundamental and believable in such a statement. It leaves no room for doubt or error. And when all the other echoes have died away, it is important to the member who said it to whom.

REPORT FROM THE INSIDE

By B. A. TOBIN

Trapped Again: Or, Paradise Unregained

CAPE CANAVERAL (AP) — Three mice named Sally, Amy and Moe rocketed 700 miles into space today and were recovered alive and in good condition from the South Atlantic, 3,000 miles away.

Sally: Oh! Oh!
Amy: Eek! Eek!
Moe: Ow Oof! Oh!

Sally: Dear me. Well, that's a little better. I hate these 20G takeoffs.
Moe: Feels as though you were going to go right through the floor. Thank goodness for these cushions and straps.
Amy: Well, it's only another test. I guess they'll let us out in a few minutes.

Moe: Test, my eye! This is it!

Sally: It?

Amy: It?

Moe: It's it, all right. I heard the lab man tell the vet that this was the big day. I thought you knew.

Sally: No, no. We thought it was just another lab test in the compression chamber.

Amy: Oh dear. Well, where are we then? What's happened?

Moe: I don't know the destination, but it's the moon or Mars, I bet.

Sally: Oh no! And I haven't even polished my fur. I look a sight!

Amy: And me beginning to moult! What will those Mars mice think of us!

Moe: Aw, what's it matter? You're both missing the big point. Which is that we're getting off Earth.

Amy: Good heavens, you're right! The chance of a lifetime. And just in time too.

Sally: Just in time?

Moe: Of course. Didn't you see those papers left around the lab? I could read some of the headlines from my cage. Terrible! The UN blowing up. All the heads of state snarling at each other. A cheese shortage threatened. Red China planning on an atomic bomb and exporting mousetraps all over the world. Japan copying all the American trap models, and putting even better springs in them. Bubonic plague found in the Congo—and you know what that does to us. Why the world isn't fit for mice. It's only good enough for men.

Amy: We're the luckiest mice alive. We just squeaked out in time.

Sally: My, I had no idea. The only talk I've heard was about these TV debates, whatever they are. Between Cammy and Nibbling, or somebody. Did they cause it all?

Moe: No, they're going to stop it all. They say the people have to decide whether they're men or mice, and then they vote on them.

Amy: And the mouse wins, of course?

Moe: Well, not necessarily.

Sally: I wonder how long before we get to Mars. Do my eyebrows look all right?

Amy: Lovely, dearie. Are you expecting to be met?

Sally: Well, it doesn't hurt to be prepared. For all we know, mice may be in full control on Mars. And if it's the moon, there's bound to be some big butter and egg men in charge of the cheese. Give my tail a brush, will you?

Moe: It's kind of nice in here. We'd better move right in when we get to Mars you know, let those yokels know who we are. We'll have them take us to their leader. Maybe they'll even elect me leader!

Amy: I doubt it. Look how you flunked in those maze tests.

Moe: That doesn't count. Anyway I was dizzy from the squirrel cages.

Amy: And you didn't do too well in the button pushing, either.

Moe: Well, I'm here, aren't I? I was good enough to be chosen, wasn't I? I bet I'd make a darn good Mars leader.

Sally: I wonder if we're nearly there? I do want my eyes to be bright.

Amy: Say, aren't we slowing up a little?

Moe: It did seem the floor was pressing again.

Sally: Mars mice, here I come.

Amy: Oh, it's getting worse.

Moe: Wow! What was that jolt?

Sally: What's that sound of water rushing by?

Amy: We seem to be bobbing up and down.

Moe: Now we're swinging. Hey, the door's opening! Hey—Oh no! Oh no!

Sally: What? What?

Amy: We're sunk. We're back on earth.

Moe: There's the lab man, and the vet! The same ones!

Amy: Back to wars, politicians and plagues.

Moe: Back to bombs, traps and a cheese shortage.

Sally: And my fur looks a sight...

In the Opinion of Our Correspondents

End of World or 'Age'

Your issue of Oct. 1 reports Dr. Norman MacKenzie, President of the University of B.C. as saying "the world could face total annihilation overnight."

This belief is commonly held by the world at large, including scientists, intellectuals and even theologians, the latter despite the several centuries which end with "world without end." Isa. 45:17 and Ephesians 3:21 use the same expression. The margin of any good reference Bible or Concordance shows "world," in the sense of this physical globe, to be derived from the Greek "aion" (eon) meaning "age" or "era," "end of the age."

In the parable of the wheat and the tares (Matt. 13th chap.) where Jesus says "The field is the world," the Bible margin employs a Greek word for "world" translated "kosmos," meaning world order. And where He says "The harvest is the end of the world" and "so shall it be in the end of this world" the Greek word in both cases is "aion," meaning "consummation of the age."

Where Jesus says "heaven and earth shall pass away, but My Word shall not pass away," the surface meaning of that would be that heaven, God's dwelling place, will be destroyed, which of course is ridiculous. The meaning here is that the present world order—not the physical earth—will be destroyed, and in the chaotic process, such as Isaiah speaks about, the aspect of the skies will change so alarmingly, and climatic conditions will alter so drastically all over the world that "the former shall not be remembered nor come into mind." The result of this cataclysm will be "a new heaven and a new earth."

Working Wives

Mr. Diefenbaker would be well advised, before holding the forthcoming meeting on unemployment, to attack—at the source—one of the causes within his own ranks. This is, the practice by the Civil Service, of allowing hundreds—if not thousands—of married women with husbands with an adequate salary to occupy positions for which widows, and single women are qualified, and entitled. Is this fair, or right?

I know, this practice to be a fact, from having worked, from time to time since 1952, as a temporary employee, in several departments, and from what I am told by friends in the Service. In one department there was a stenographer whose husband was in a well-paid position. She had been working there for ten years, and was still classified as "temporary."

The Civil Service Act should, therefore, be amended so that only self-supporting women, or those married who have to maintain a home, are allowed to hold positions. The married women presently employed, should be released as soon as possible, and their positions filled with self-supporting women.

DORIS ASHDOWN.

'Repressive Action'

In the report concerning the cut-off by the Government of the "check-off" of dues for the B.C. Government Employees Association contained in your issue of Oct. 11th, Mr. Black is reported to have said that "The Provincial Government has always defended the right of its employees to organize for the advancement of their legitimate interests. It defends equally the right and desire of its employees to hold themselves aloof from affiliation, direct or otherwise, with any political party."

The right of its employees to hold themselves aloof from affiliations of any kind, be they labor, political or social, has always been theirs and therefore needs no defence. The Government has never defended the right of its employees to advance their legitimate interests; on the contrary, it has denied them this right with a consistency worthy of a better cause and with little credit to itself. The cut-off of dues check-off, a right which all other workers enjoy, is just another example of repressive action.

Unions may, if the membership so decides, assist in the election of the party of their choice but as the Government well knows, no part of the per capita tax paid by the Association or any other of the Unions affiliated to the B.C. Federation of Labor or the Canadian Labor Congress is or can be used for party political purposes.

Over-Population

How do we propose to resolve the population explosion problem? Where Canada is concerned, that is a problem for a few years hence.

What about India, Russia, China? Do we honestly believe human intelligence can contend with the inevitable? It is a real, vital and a natural problem. So, Sir Julian Huxley estimated that there were one million people on this earth, about 12,000 years ago. One million increased in 12,000 years to nearly three billion. Well, mathematics is an exact science. How long did it take to procure that first one million? And not all the mathematicians in the world can make the answer add up to evolution. So it is very obvious that there is a fatal flaw in our reasoning in the field of education which is driving us to the humanly insoluble problem of overpopulation, and the very real threat of mass annihilation.

UNITED NATIONS:

The Winds Of Change

By JAMES MORRIS

THAT tireless old zephyr, the wind of change, has been sweeping down First Avenue and stirring the fustian hangings of the cold war. The Americans, sensing its force, wisely suggested that all aid to Africa should be funnelled through the United Nations—partly a dig at the Russians in the Congo, but partly a realisation that, like the movie-lovers say, this thing is getting too big for us.

The British, though ever careful neither to lull the Russians into ferocity nor to goad the Americans into isolationism, have nevertheless ridden its gusts astutely, as they press a policy that is strongly tinged with neutral instinct.

The Russians have, as usual, flattered and courted the uncommitted with unctuous ritual, a process culminating in a luncheon given by Khrushchev and his Communist lackeys for seven neutral grandees, ranging from Nehru himself by way of the Prime Minister of Nepal to the Crown Prince of Morocco.

Heaven knows (and no less intimately, the New York police force) that the great Powers, sweeping from hotel to hotel in a pageantry of Cadillacs, have tried their very best; but I strongly suspect, all the same, that the new surge of confidence among the middle Powers, their air of burgeoning authority, is self-engendered, and is occurring in revulsion against, rather than in response to, the attitudes of the giants.

Lesser Saints

Of course their motives are not all baby pure. Nkrumah, who has come out of the Assembly with his reputation sadly tarnished, no longer seems a fitting companion for Nehru's brotherhood of lesser saints.

But in general it seems to me that the most virile political movement of the time, more forceful by far than the stale antipathies of East and West, is the new impetus of neutrality.

Men like Nasser, much mellowed by the years, speak of it with fresh conviction. The countries of Latin America seem ever more ready to adopt it. It offers an honorable escape for the Castros and Kassems of our time, swirling on the edge of the Communist orbit. It has the dignity of the Swedes and the Irish to bolster it, and it seems to spell, above all, peace.

The neutral resolution calling for a meeting between Eisenhower and Khrushchev represented, I feel sure, the overwhelming corporate will of the Assembly, as of the world.

This immense force of feeling neither the Russians nor the Americans—neither their peoples nor their Government—seem able to appreciate. It can be well argued that a Summit meeting now, with Eisenhower still in office, would be a waste of time—Khrushchev has argued it, and the President is obviously chary of embarrassing his party by any false move of diplomacy; but my point is that neither side seems to grasp how vastly the strength of world opinion now transcends their own national predilections.

They are actually in danger of getting left behind—pacemakers outpaced, sprinters out of their class. They are out of touch, and out of temper, with the swing of the times.

Absurd Misjudgment

Khrushchev's behaviour during Macmillan's speech in the Assembly was an absurd misjudgment of a situation; nearly everyone was affronted by his interruptions, the most notable exceptions being the British themselves who would welcome any step to convert the pompous propaganda-box of the Assembly into a genuine debating chamber.

As for the Americans, their appraisals of the speech entirely missed its purpose: scarcely a New York paper failed to applaud its keen retorts to Khrushchev, but not one, even the "New York Times," appeared to understand that its theme was the tragedy of mutual fear—American fear of Russia, Russian fear of America.

Now this resurgence of the middle way—to which, whether we like it or not, British policy has given a powerful fillip—can either be a great triumph or an awful tragedy.

It will be a tragedy if it is distorted: If the Western Nations, gulled by its promise, are tempted to abandon their positions of strength before the time is ripe, or if its neutrality is tainted, so that it is not really neutral at all, but loaded one way or the other: or if it becomes simply a device by which petty unreliable States seek to impose their shifty will or to milk the benefits of blackmail; or if any of us are induced to modify our own standards, as distinct from our policies, for the sake of peace and quiet (and in my mind, anyway, as in Mr. Dulles's, the plight of the Poles, the Hungarians, and the other captives of Europe will always present some cruel moral dilemmas).

Noble Triumph

But it will be a noble triumph if it means that the United Nations itself, fortified by this emergent unity of intention, becomes the true arbiter of political fortune persuasive to the Russians and Americans as it was four short years ago, to the British and the French.

It may possibly be that the Secretary-General should be in some way reorganized to reflect more accurately the present membership of the organization—though inevitably Laos or Mali will be less thoroughly represented on its staff than, say, France or Canada.

But whatever reforms are admitted, whatever concessions made, one man must have the final word in the execution of the Assembly's policies, or this finely tempered instrument, this thing of moving and resplendent possibility, will be blunted into impotence, to rot away down the generations in mockery and contumely.

But whoever he is, he will have to be trusted, implicitly and beyond cavil. The Secretary-General of the United Nations is, I am beginning to think, the most important person in the world: and it is one of the exquisite refinements of the human condition that in the end, beyond the rockets and the computers and the committees and the resolutions and even the presidential elections, our welfare must still depend upon the faith one man has in another.

Campaign Wife

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Mrs. John F. Kennedy, the only potential first lady who was once a card-carrying journalist, resumed her newspaper career as an unpaid columnist for the Democratic national committee.

In a sense, Mrs. Kennedy and I are now colleagues and I wish to welcome her return to the fold. However, I hope that her non-salaried status doesn't start a new trend.

The title of her column, which the committee is distributing on a weekly basis, is "Campaign Wife." This would make a fine title for a radio soap opera but it has certain drawbacks as a column heading.

It means that in November she either will have to change the title or retire again.

In her first column, Mrs. Kennedy wrote of "How frustrating it is" to have to stay home and tend to her knitting while her husband is out campaigning. At least, I assume she has been knitting.

The reason she can't join her husband on the campaign trail is because she is expecting her second child in December. So, she said, "I decided one way to keep from feeling left out was to talk through this column to the friendly people all over the country I would have met while campaigning."

In her previous experience as a journalist, Mrs. Kennedy conducted an inquiring photographer column for The Washington Times-Herald. She went around taking pictures of truck drivers and asking them questions like "What do you think of the new Paris fashions?"

One of Mrs. Kennedy's former co-workers told me that she was rather shy in those days and seemed to find this sort of thing distasteful. On occasions, some of her male colleagues would lend her a hand.

I might add that Mrs. Kennedy was, and is, a very attractive brunette and I suspect this made it easy to get volunteers.

Subsequently, she got married to the present Democratic presidential nominee and the Times-Herald merged with the Washington Post. But I suppose this was only coincidental.

Last Monday, Mrs. Kennedy invited some of her sister journalists in for tea and shop talk. The conversation naturally touched on the recent controversy over how much she and Mrs. Nixon spend for clothes.

Mrs. Kennedy made it plain that she has no intention of engaging in a wardrobe feud with her Republican rival, and I sort of regret this. It would have made good column material for the both of us.

LONDON LETTER

By WALLACE REYBURN

The Old Pub Is Changing

LONDON—It's certainly a rapidly changing Britain. Just consider these basic alterations to the British way of life which have all been enacted within the space of a few months.

Stamps: Since the time this country invented them in 1840, you've only been able to buy them from a post office. Now they go on sale in the shops.

What a blessing. It puts an end to the age-old annoyance of trying to get hold of a stamp after 6 p.m. or on Sundays, when post offices are closed.

No longer will there be that so frequent sight of people standing by stamp vending machines outside post offices pleading with passers-by to change their money into pennies and halfpennies to put into them.

Farthings: Their abolition will, among other things, require the rewriting of children's arithmetic books.

Out goes sums like this: "If nine buns cost 11½d, how much does each bun cost?"

Also a thing of the past now is the awarding of "a farthing damages" in court cases in which someone is proved to be legally right but nothing more than that.

In future such litigants will get a half-penny.

Gambling in pubs: On pub walls, along with such signs as "Bass On Draught," "No Persons Under 18 Served" and "Wybmadiity," there has always been that old one about "Gambling Forbidden."

(Before going on, I should explain wybmadiity. It's a catch for the unwary. If anyone asks what it stands for he gets the reply: "Will You Buy Me a Drink If I Tell You?"

At the turn of the year the gambling-forbidden sign comes down and patrons can play darts, dominoes and bar billiards for money to their hearts' content.

Not that they didn't gamble on these games before.

Now it doesn't have to be furtive.

Betting shops: They follow a little while after pub gambling becomes legal, thus putting an end to the farce of being permitted to bet away from the racetrack only by phone or mail.

It will be a matter of merely going into a bookmaker's shop and doing it by cash.

But an interesting point about this is that all the big bookies are betting on the fact that basically the British don't like change, even when it's to their advantage.

None of them plans to open up any such betting shops on the local high streets.

They say it will be small-time stuff (housewife shoppers having their "two shillings each way") and the big punters will stick to the habit of doing it by phone.

Fines on the spot: At long last the British are ending the nonsense of tying up police man-power by making coppers stand beside cars to present personally to the drivers summonses for parking infringements and the like.

Now in London, as from this week, a ticket goes on the windshield and the police can get on with other business.

But as yet it is to be only an experiment, despite the fact that on your side of the Atlantic, years of on-the-spot fines prove that it works.

CARELESS CARESS COSTLY

A careless while driving is the same as careless driving. Magistrate William Ostler said in. He fined Joseph Kedmenec, 1861 Feltham, the usual $35 for a careless driving offence. In fact, I think they are when the accused pleaded guilty of being in improper control of a vehicle. Police said Kedmenec with his right arm around a girl who was "almost behind the steering wheel" drove for 150 About 10,000 housewives in Norway had free summer welfare agencies.

The Ladies Prefer Cluster Lights

Women don't like modern mercury lighting because it gives their complexions a weird look at night, Ald. Elmer McEwen told a council meeting Thursday.

"This might surprise you but just ask the women," he said. "Mercury lights are unpopular." The alderman raised the point during a discussion on whether to replace cluster lights with mercury lighting in the downtown area. Council voted in favor of retaining the cluster lights on the grounds they were an attraction to the city. But a vote on the issue will be taken again next week.

Loss-Leader Test Case In Saanich

Legality of loss-leader commodities in food stores was challenged Thursday in a test case in Saanich police court.

Henry Eng, of IGA Foodliner, 3475 Quadra, is charged with violation of the Commodities Minimum Loss Act, 1937, a provincial statute requiring at least 5 per cent markup on wholesale price.

It is alleged he sold Grade A large eggs, which he bought for 38 cents a dozen, for 39 cents a dozen during a sale March 14-19, 1960.

ULTRA VIRES

"The statute is ultra vires the Province of British Columbia in that it purports to deal with a subject assigned to the Parliament of Canada under the British North America Act.

"I don't intend to advance argument in support of that submission at the present time and this is not the court in which to raise a constitutional question of some complexity.

"But I think it right to raise the point in case Your Honor wants to go into it," he told Magistrate William Ostler.

AT 36c
In cross-examination by Mr. Haldane, George Young, Ganges egg salesman who delivered eggs at wholesale price to the Foodliner, said he had made February delivery of Grade A large eggs at 36 cents a dozen.

He could not tell the court whether the eggs sold (retail) in March were those bought (wholesale) in February.

Charles Walls, manager of the British Columbia Federation of Agriculture, said his organization became interested in the matter when Agriculture Minister Newton Steacy failed to act on requests of poultry producers.

He said that at a banquet meeting on July 16, 1959, Mr. Steacy promised to prosecute if poultrymen would produce evidence of Commodities Act violation.

SERIOUS THREAT

The minister was told loss-leaders were becoming a serious threat, the witness said.

"Then 'his, to your knowledge, is being put on as a test case?" Mr. Haldane asked.

"That's right," said Walls. "Since he (the minister) took no action, then we became interested in it."

He said evidence was given to Mr. Steacy, March 17, 1960, and on March 24 it was returned by deputy attorney-general Gilbert Kennedy, who said the organization would have to pay for the prosecution.

The hearing was adjourned to October 25 to complete the Crown's case with evidence of about eight more witnesses.

CLC LEAVES DOOR OPEN TO TEAMSTERS

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian Labor Congress appears to be accepting a period of peaceful co-existence with the maverick Teamsters Brotherhood, informants indicated Thursday night.

The thorny Teamster issue was raised at the CLC's high-level executive council session but no new course was charted, sources said.

The Teamsters Union was expelled four months ago from the congress—parent body of Canada's organized labor movement—for raiding the membership of another CLC affiliated union, a violation of the constitution.

Since then, top CLC and Teamster officials have met secretly to see if a reconciliation was possible.

By neither opening nor slamming the congress door, the council left the next move up to the Teamsters.

Mac's Son Hits Dad's Fiscal Plan

SCARBOROUGH, England (Reuters) — Maurice Macmillan, 39-year-old son of Prime Minister Macmillan, shook the ruling Conservative party's annual conference here today by a hard-hitting speech in which he castigated his father's government spending policies.

Under the eye of his mother, Lady Dorothy Macmillan, who sat on the platform near him, Macmillan told the conference he was backing a resolution demanding lower taxes and a brake on government spending.

He said Britain's taxation level is far too high and government expenditure is not only too high but uncontrolled and unco-ordinated.

FOREIGN TRADE LAGS

The prime minister's son said Britain is suffering from a credit squeeze and balance of payment's trouble, with her foreign trade lagging behind competitors, he said.

British exports are not even beginning to pay for the imports required to meet insatiable demands for better domestic living standards, he claimed, and things are likely to get worse as the terms of trade begin to turn against Britain.

The conference greeted Selwyn Lloyd, Britain's new treasury chief, by overwhelmingly passing a resolution declaring taxation is still too high and urging the government to freeze expenditures.

TAXES TOO HIGH

The former foreign secretary made his first public speech as chancellor of the exchequer as he faced a barrage of motions urging lower income tax, cuts in government expenditure, the removal of death duties and the raising of the level of surtax on higher incomes.

Lloyd conceded Britain's present level of taxation is too high and said he would like to see it progressively lowered.

"I entirely agree that high direct taxation is a deterrent to initiative, to hard work and to the full use of ability," he said.

Lloyd added: "My first pre-occupation—and I tell you this straight—is to see we should carry out existing programs without increasing the burden of taxation."

N.Y. Bomber Described

NEW YORK (AP) — Police are seeking a heavy-set, lame, wild-haired man as a suspect in the Wednesday bombing in a Times Square subway station which injured 34 persons.

A sketch of the man was compiled from a detailed description furnished by a 16-year-old girl victim of the explosion.

The same man may have planted a bomb Oct. 2 above ground in Times Square and Oct. 9 outside the public library at 42nd Street and Fifth Avenue. In the first blast seven persons were hurt. No one was injured in the second.

PESSIMISM ON EAST, WEST DEALINGS HIT

SCARBOROUGH, England (UPI)—British Foreign Secretary Lord Home urged the Conservative party Thursday to "put down the pessimistic conclusion" that relations with the Soviet Union cannot be improved.

He said little separates East and West on the principles of disarmament, "but we must get down to the business of discussing disarmament again in detail—we have made enough speeches to each other."

'Blustering Propaganda'

LONDON (Reuters)—European newspapers today summed up Nikita Khrushchev's 25-day appearance at the United Nations as a blustering propaganda circus offering little hope for a thaw in the cold war.

At the same time, the Communist press hailed the Russian premier as a returning hero.

LITTLE TO RAVE ABOUT
British newspapers found little to rave about in the Russian premier's UN visit.

"His boorish behavior may have won him cheap publicity but has it gained him any friends?" asked The Daily Telegraph.

The Scotsman said Khrushchev badly misjudged the people he intended to impress at the UN.

He would have been more successful if he had taken his line from the neutrals' profound desire for peace and engines.

backed up their resolutions, the paper commented.

Until about 1885 all ironclads in the British navy were equipped with masts and yards for sails to supplement their engines.

BILL'S VICTORY DANCE

Dancing gleefully around bases, Pittsburgh's Bill Mazeroski is mobbed at plate after hitting home run in ninth inning to give Pirates 10-9 victory over New York Yankees and first World Series title in 35 years. He smashed ball over left-field wall to write dramatic finale to Thursday's seventh game at Forbes Field. (AP Wirephoto.)

'No Touch' Had Best Touch When Bucs Needed It Most

Records Belong to Yankees But Pirates Snatch Gold

(From Times News Services)

PITTSBURGH—There were a lot of heroes in this just concluded World Series, but you have to put the laurel wreath on the guy who wound it up.

You can make a case for two-time winners Harvey Haddix or Whitey Ford or the little guy who saved three games, meaning Elroy Face. Or you can talk about little Bobby Richardson, who wiped out the runs-batted-in record of the legendary hitting greats.

But for sheer production you gotta go for Bill Mazeroski.

Ever since he came up to the Pirates in mid-1956 he has been known as a slick-fielding marvel but not a guy who will run your pitchers crazy with a bat. They called him "no touch" because he gets the ball away with such eye-blinking rapidity on a double play. But nobody ever thought for a second that he'd ever write any home run records.

Okay, so he hasn't. But the blasts he fired in the 1960 World Series will be remembered long after a lot of home run hitters are forgotten.

Go back to the first game and you'll remember that it was the ball which Mazeroski knocked over the left field scoreboard in the fourth inning, with one of his Buc mates aboard, which gave the Pirates their fourth and fifth runs. They were the runs which won it in a 6-4 contest. Then it was the ninth inning of the seventh and final game at Forbes Field Thursday and Mazeroski—who hit only 11 home runs all season—stepped up to the plate.

Ralph Terry, the towering young fast ball pitcher of the Yankees sent the ball winging plateward and Mazeroski took it for a ball.

Now Terry fired it again and Mazeroski swung with every ounce of his strength.

"Nobody told me what to do when I went up there," he said. "But I was talking to myself. 'Go for the long ball. You gotta,' I told myself. Then it came.

"The instant the bat cracked against the ball I knew it was hit. I felt chills all over. I felt wonderful.

"But," he added with a grin, "for a second I was kinda frozen. Then I said to myself, 'Better run for it. This is it.' It was, indeed.

FANS ERUPTED

The ball soared over that red brick wall with the scraggly ivy clinging to it in left-centrefield and fans began to pour down out of the stands.

"Then it felt like I was going 15 rounds with Floyd Patterson," he smiled. "They pounded me so hard I thought they were gonna knock me out."

But, he had to admit, they didn't hit him as hard as he had hit Terry. For his was a blow which not only won the series but also ended a Pirate famine extending back to 1925, the last time the Bucs won the world championship.

And years from now, when they look back at the 1960 series, they won't believe it.

They'll look at the statistics and all the records that were smashed and they won't be able to understand how Pittsburgh ever managed to defeat New York, four games to three.

They'll thrill at the final game heroics climaxed by Mazeroski's home run that won the dramatic finale, 10-9.

COMEBACK CLUB

They'll admire the courage comeback of the underdog "beat 'em Bucs," but they will also wonder how a team that was humiliated by such lopsided scores as 16-3, 10-0 and 12-0 could take the proud and mighty Yankees into the seventh game and, then beat them with their own weapon—the home run.

They'll look with awe at the all-time record totals of 53 runs and 91 hits by the Yankees, and then note that the Pirates scored less than half as many runs and collected less than two-thirds as many hits, and were out-homered 10 to 4, yet were able to end 35 years of frustration with a world championship.

It took a break to keep the Bucs alive. After pinch hitter Gino Cimoli singled to open the eighth, Bill Virdon, the defensive hero of the series, rapped a hard grounder to short. It looked like a sure double play. But the ball took a bad hop, struck Tony Kubek in the throat, and went for a single. The shortstop was taken to a hospital for treatment and the Buc rally was in full bloom.

Pirates went on to score five runs, capped by catcher Hal Smith's three-run homer, to jump ahead 9-7 after trailing by three runs.

Kubek suffered a severely bruised vocal chord and remained in hospital overnight.

SIDELINE SLANTS

BY

Doug Peden

They really kicked the lid off that place called Pittsburgh Thursday after Bill Mazeroski unloaded his already historic belt into the bleachers, which was par for the course in a town that had just beat the odds and grabbed its first World Series crown in 35 years.

It must be admitted that William's wallop also packed a lot of satisfaction for a guy who took a lot of ribbing because he picked the Pirates and little Elroy to subdue the power-happy Yankees.

It said in this corner before the series started that the Pirates would win in six games and that Elroy Face, the mighty mite who takes care of Pittsburgh's toughest relief-pitching chores, would be the man who made the difference.

The Bucs didn't make it in six. They just managed to squeak home in front in a heart-hammering seventh game. But they won it, and today that's all that really matters down Pittsburgh way.

And Elroy wasn't exactly invincible in that cliff-hanging finale, but he saved the first three Pirate triumphs and he held the fort for a while in the one that did it. Without him, the Bucs wouldn't have been around for a sixth, let alone a seventh game.

Probably the most remarkable thing in the series was the way the Pirates refused to disintegrate under the psychological bombing of three lopsided defeats. They just kept battling, playing baseball the way they had all season and finally felled the Bronx Bombers with one last stab with the favorite Yankee weapon—the home run.

Casey Still Best Pilot in the Game

As has been noted, the Yanks did the mightiest hitting and set all the records, but the Pirates grabbed the winners' share of the loot. And they earned it.

Still you can't take anything away from Casey Stengel. After all, it was probably only a bad-hopping ground ball which dented Tony Kubek's Adam's apple, in the eighth inning that kept Casey from nailing his eighth series victory to the wall. He still stacks up as the best manager in baseball.

Everyone seems bent on retiring Stengel, but it wouldn't be surprising if they finally had to cut the uniform off the old professor. If he isn't managing the Yankees next spring, he'll probably be running the baseball works elsewhere.

Instead of talking about Casey quitting, the New York brass should be urging him to stay. He comes closer than anybody else in the game to being the irreplaceable man. By any yardstick he has been the most valuable Yankee—a general and field manager and public relations expert all rolled into one.

It's the little things that make Stengel a big man. That and his absolute dedication to the game he played so well.

Stengel is as far-sighted as H. G. Wells and the best psychologist-without-couch around, but it's his attention to little things that gave New York 10 American League pennants in 12 years.

This wasn't one of the best Yankee teams and Casey, as dedicated to detail as a fussy maitre de hotel, perhaps turned in his finest managing job this year. As Chicago manager Al Lopez remarked, "There were times when the old man had to play it by ear, and he kept in tune every time a crisis loomed."

Stengel came to the Yankees in 1949 completely equipped as a manager. He has everything, including his own inimitable communications system.

Has Own Way of Needling Athletes

He never bawls out his warriors, depending on his own way of getting his points across. The day after a bad game, Casey could be heard telling baseball writers by the dug-out in a loud voice, so all his noble athletes could hear, "These fellows forget you played this game yourself and because you are a little older just might know more than they do." It's one of his ways of giving offending Yankees the needle.

There he often gets the latest line on his rivals from writers without their suspecting they are feeding him valuable information. Against the Pirates, Casey might have commented, "I hear Hoak's leg is better." If informed it hadn't improved, Stengel would play his infield a step deeper when Don came to bat.

Roger Maris has a habit of tailing off toward the end of a season, so for a while his year Casey moved him to second place in the batting order to ease the pressure. Once Stengel led off with Maris against a southpaw pitcher especially effective against the outfielder who was then leading the league in home runs and runs batted in. Asked why, old Casey explained, "I didn't want the pitcher walking Mickey Mantle to get at Maris. Up where he was, the only one he could walk to get at Maris was the pitcher."

As we said before, it's the little things that make Casey Stengel the best and most colorful manager in baseball. We hope he stays around.

And for my money today, the biggest player is a little guy called Elroy Face. He sure saved mine.

CALGARY (CP)—Coach Gus Kyle had no choice but to go with rookie goaltender Art Lariviere as Calgary Stampede opened their Western Hockey League schedule Thursday night.

As it turned out, Kyle saw one of his major problems partly solved when Lariviere handled 19 shots and earned a shutout as Calgary downed visiting Winnipeg Warriors 5-0.

Als' Protest Disallowed

WINNIPEG (CP)—Canadian football commissioner G. Sydney Halter announced that he has disallowed a protest entered by Montreal Alouettes following a game at Montreal Sept. 24, won by Toronto Argonauts 21-9.

The protest was against a decision by a game official which wiped out an Alouette convert. The protest claimed the decision changed the complexion of the game.

The incident occurred in the third quarter. Alouette half-back George Dixon scored a touchdown, which made the score 13-6 for Toronto. On the convert attempt, an official ruled that Alouettes breached the rules by trying to draw Argonauts offside. The convert was wiped out.

Halter said that the call in question was a "judgment call" by an official and under the Canadian Football League bylaws could not be protested.

Referee Willie Papp handed out 11 minor penalties during the rough game. Calgary had seven with defenceman George McAvoy drawing four of them.

LOU ON TARGET

Lou Jankowski, who scored 42 goals last season, paced the Calgary attack with two goals. Rookie Jerry Esch and veterans Norm Johnson and Wally Hergesheimer added singles.

HEMMINGWAY TO MISS SATURDAY GAME

Drakes Eye Top Spot

Victoria Drakes will have to toss all their eggs into one basket if they hope to finish in first place in the Pacific Coast Intermediate Football Conference.

The Drakes will have to make it with a slight limp. Standout halfback Gordie Hemmingway will be out of action when the Victoria team meets Vancouver Grizzlies in the "rubber game" of their three meetings during the unbalanced schedule.

Saturday's meeting, on Macdonald Park turf, starting at 2:30 p.m., will mark the first visit of the season for coach Pete Thodos' Grizzlies.

Defensive Victoria back George Wilson is also listed as a doubtful starter for Saturday's game. Other Drakes harboring injuries earlier this week are expected to play, however. They include tackle Fred Harris, centre Pat Corneil and half Ross Fitzgerald.

Drake coach Jack Patrick, looking at the unsettled weather conditions of late, doesn't particularly care what the weatherman offers Saturday.

"If it's wet," he said today, "Vancouver's attack will be slowed down. They have a decided edge in speed under normal conditions."

"On the other hand, if the weather is good, it will help our passing. There, I think we have an edge over Vancouver."

COUGAR KIDS ARE READY

Ready for first professional game at Memorial Arena tonight are eager Victoria rookies Don Wilson (left) and big Bert Fizzell (right), who are slated to work on line with veteran

New Edition of Cougars Tackles Totems Tonight

It's hockey time in Victoria again and the new edition of the Cougars goes on View at Memorial Arena tonight.

The Cats, with only six holdovers from last season's club, go against Seattle Totems, the team that finished second in the Western Hockey League race last winter and then lost four straight games to the Cougars in playoff semifinals.

Cougars, campaigning under rookie coach George Agar, who moved to Victoria after seven good years as manager-coach of Vernon Canadians in the Okanagan Senior Hockey League, will be counting on a solid defence and balance on the front lines to trip the Totems.

MARCEL IN GOAL

Agar, still working today to sign two or three reluctant players, expects to have colorful Marcel Pelletier in goal behind defence duos of Hugh Currie and Don McLeod and Jim Hay and Wayne North.

Veteran Doug Anderson is due to work at centre for Don Wilson and Bert Fizzell, a pair of bright rookies who racked up great records last season in the Saskatchewan Junior League.

Another Cougar line will have holdover centre Gerry Goyer working with wingers Paf Ginnell, with the Totems last winter, and Jim Moro, who played with Spokane.

ALL RIGHTWINGERS

Three players who normally play on right wing will combine on a third attacking unit. Doug Macauley is slated to work between George Ford and Bill Swarbrick, an Okanagan loop veteran bidding for a regular berth.

The game could feature a pair of brother acts. Jim McLeod, brother of the Cougar defenceman, is expected to handle the Seattle goaltender chores in place of Bev Bentley, who was injured in training.

six-game tour of Canada for Yawata. They left this morning for a trip to Disneyland, returning home Oct. 16.

The loss was the second in a row for the tourists. They were defeated 36-22 by British Columbia Reps last Saturday, after winning four games.

The game was played under rainy skies, which made the ball and the footing hazardous, especially the passing. Play throughout was just about even.

YAWATA STARTS

Wing forward Yasuhiko Yamazaki opened the scoring for Yawata at the 20-minute mark of the first half, falling on a loose ball after a scrum-rush.

Toshihisa Uchimura kicked the convert. Ten minutes later, UBC's Mike Chambers scored his team's first try when he gained possession of the ball at the Yawata 25-yard line, eluded two tacklers, spun past two more and dove into the end zone. The convert missed.

At the 40-minute mark, Uchimura put the Japanese ahead 8-3 with a penalty goal from 25 yards out. UBC drew closer in the final 30 seconds of the half when Alan Morton scored on a three-line rush.

AHEAD TO STAY

The Thunderbirds went ahead to stay at the eight-minute mark of the second half, fullback Ben Gilmore kicking a 32-yard penalty goal to make it 9-8.

Others scoring for UBC in the half were Bill DuBois with a try, Sandy Tucker with a try, and Morton with his second try.

Yawata picked up its lone try from speedy Kunio Miyai.

RED CROSS 'AT HOME' TO EDUCATE CITIZENS

WHITE GUARDS MOBILIZE

South Rhodesia Starts 'Clamp-Down' on Rioters

SALISBURY (Reuters) — Two battalions of white National Guardsmen answered a call-out today as Southern Rhodesia began to clamp down on African "troublemakers" following weeks of civil strife. The guardsmen were summoned to back up police in Salisbury, Gwelo and Bulawayo where bloody riots and strikes have erupted in the past week.

At the same time, it was announced an "active citizens' force" of whites is being formed in Gwelo—the scene of arson and pillage by African rioters.

WIDER POWERS

Legal measures are also being taken to widen the government's powers to act against dissidents and rioters.

Premier Sir Edgar Whitehead Thursday announced draft laws giving him the power to impose curfews and deport non-Rhodesian Africans.

Whitehead said the minimum sentence for stoning a car would be raised to five years in jail, because he considers the offence equivalent to attempted murder.

Under the new legislation, to be introduced in Parliament next week, African "hooligans, spivs and loafers" would be sent to rehabilitation centres "to undertake useful labor under discipline," Whitehead said.

Federal Prime Minister Sir Roy Welensky said the guardsmen were summoned as a "precautionary measure."

HE'S DONE IT

'Accentuate Positive' Success Key

A joint meeting of Victoria Rotary Club and Victoria Sales Executive Club in the Empress Hotel Thursday was given a lesson in success by W. Clement Stone, a Chicago insurance man.

Mr. Stone, who started in the insurance business at the age of 14 and owned his own company before he was 21, said the key to success lay in a positive mental attitude.

FINE ART

Although he has used this approach to develop the profession of selling to a fine art, he claims it works just as well for any activity.

The three main principles for success, he said, were: Inspiration to motivation (to know where you are going); know-how (techniques, skills, etc.), and a knowledge of the product.

"The most important living person as far as you are concerned is you," said Mr. Stone. "You have the power to do anything that anyone has ever done or is now doing."

"Anything the mind can conceive or believe, the mind can achieve," he said.

DO IT NOW

The habitual procrastinator can be cured by following the advice of three little words: "Do it now."

There is very little difference between "little people" and "big people" — it boiled down to a positive mental attitude.

"I am proud to be a salesman," said Mr. Stone, "because it is salesmen, credit and a positive mental attitude that have made my nation's greatness."

CRUMP WARNS RAIL STRIKE TO CUT JOBS

MONTREAL (CP) — N. R. Crump, president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, told the railway's workers Thursday a strike of non-operating employees would drive away more business and force a cut in employment.

Mr. Crump, in a letter to the employees, said railway business has been declining and wage costs increasing since the Second World War.

"I cannot put it to you more frankly than to say that if railway costs keep on rising, Canadian Pacific will find itself handling still less traffic and providing still fewer jobs," Mr. Crump said.

Canada's railways are threatened with a strike of 111,000 non-operating employees—those who do not actually run the trains.

STUDENT STRIKE THREAT

QUEBEC (CP)—The general council of the Association of Laval University Students early today issued an ultimatum to university authorities to agree to formation of an arbitration committee to define student rights.

If the authorities do not agree, the council warned it will feel justified "to make very grave decisions."

Jean-Louis Caron, secretary of the association, said this could mean a mass resignation of the 35-man council or the calling of a general student strike.

The council's action followed the university's dismissal Wednesday of three students for publication of "Immoral" articles in the student weekly—Le Carabin.

SPEAKERS' CORNER GETS YEAR'S TRIAL

'We Won't Cause Trouble'

An official of the Socialist Party of Canada said today city council has set a precedent for parks across Canada by approving the establishment of a "speakers' corner" in Beacon Hill Park.

Council on Thursday agreed to give the speakers' corner a year's trial.

C. M. Luff, an official of the Socialist Party, which requested council to designate an area in the park for public speaking, said he knew of no other park in Canada which allowed public speaking.

"I know of two in the United States," he said. "In England nearly all parks and commons have a speaker's corner—not only Hyde Park as some people seem to think."

Ald. M. H. Mooney said he was against the public speaking in the park because the police department disapproved.

"It will have to be policed like other parks in England," he said. "If people want to do some public speaking they should do so in halls."

Ald. Lily Wilson said council is making a "serious mistake."

"We talk a lot about freedom of speech but we don't do anything to encourage it," replied Ald. Geoffrey Edgell. "We are always telling people to vote and to take an interest in politics, but we won't promote any plan whereby people can express their views."

He said the speakers' corner would provide people, particularly older people, with a lot of enjoyment, regardless of political opinions.

HUMOR
"They can listen to funny speeches," he said. "It would be a tourist attraction."

Ald. Elmer McEwen said there was a big difference between attending a public meeting and an open-air meeting. He explained that a person in a church or hall feels obligated to sit through the meeting regardless of his feelings.

But at a speakers' corner, he said, a person is free to leave or move about.

He foresaw no trouble arising from allowing people to speak in the park.

"We certainly won't cause trouble," he said. "We are a law abiding organization."

He said the next step will be to establish rules and regulations for the speakers' corner.

Council's decision came as a surprise as only two weeks ago the majority of aldermen were cool to the plan.

The proposal was approved despite strong opposition from the city police department, the parks department and two members of council.

193 Dogs Expected For Big City Show

Victoria's Crystal Garden will be strictly off limits to cats next weekend, if they know what's good for them.

An entry of 193 dogs is anticipated for the 73rd annual Fall Championship Show there sponsored by the Victoria City Kennel Club.

Critical Praise

MONTREAL (CP)—The Royal Winnipeg Ballet, marking its 21st anniversary, opened a three-day engagement at the Comedie-Canadienne on Thursday night and drew critical applause.

Harold Whitehead of The Gazette commented: "There is perhaps no greater pleasure in theatre than watching a well-trained, happy company perform."

"It has its imperfections of course, but its good points far outweigh these."

He singled out Marilyn Young, a slim beauty, for special mention.

Among the works put on were Variations for a Lonely Theme, to a score of Brahms, and The Darling, to music by Benjamin Britten.

Animals are entered from many parts of the Pacific Northwest. Guest judge will be Toronto fancier Thomas Joel.

Judging will take place Friday and Saturday with Victorian George Donaldson judging group awards the first day and prizes presented by Mrs. John Tribe.

On Saturday the prizes will be presented by Mrs. E. W. Finch-Noyes, wife of Rear Admiral Finch-Noyes, following judging by Mr. Joel.

LONG-RANGE

Traffic Plan Supported By Council

The city council Thursday adopted in principle a long-range plan for traffic and parking development in Victoria.

The plan calls for the eventual establishment of one-way streets, the acquisition of parking facilities in downtown Victoria and the development of major access routes to the city.

In urging council to endorse the plan, city engineer James Garnett said an early start should be made to implement that part of the plan dealing with development of major routes to the city.

"In our opinion item number one on the plan is the extension of Blanshard," he said. "It is the key to major improvements to our traffic problems."

He said there would be little use in reconstructing Fountain Circle if Blanshard is not extended to provide an additional access to the city.

"Reconstruction of the Circle would improve things for a while, but in a short time we would be faced with a traffic problem there," he explained.

342 HUNTERS HOME WITH ONLY 28 KILLS

DUNCAN—A total of 342 hunters who stalked the Cayuse and Nitinat area during the weekend period of Oct. 8, 9 and 10 shot seven elk and 21 deer, according to Cowichan game warden W. H. Fowkes.

Four hunters will appear in court—one at Duncan and three at Lake Cowichan—to face charges of violating game laws.

A number of elk have been sighted in the San Juan River area, and the game warden said the report was from a "reliable source."

One elk was taken at Copper Canyon and is said to be the first shot in that area for many years.

ISLAND DIGEST

Victoria Daily Times FRIDAY, OCT. 14, 1960 15

ISLAND BRIEFS

Old Hunter Still Wants His Rifle

DUNCAN—Veteran hunter Albert Hankins, 75, refuses to give up the search for his lost rifle.

Last week he stayed in rough country for four days looking for the rifle while 20 civilian hunters searched for him.

On being found he insisted he was not lost, but was looking for a favorite rifle he had misplaced in the bush.

"We cannot make him stay home," his wife said, "and he has returned to the area in another attempt to find the rifle."

"He won't give up. Now he thinks he may have lost it just off the Copper Canyon Road."

Mr. Hankins' youngest son, Vernon, is trailing him.

DUNCAN—A choral society has been formed in Duncan under the direction of a former European opera conductor and university music teacher.

H. W. Killian, Maple Bay, a resident here for six years, directs the secular choir of 26 members who have a single purpose—"to cultivate good music."

Mr. Killian said the group, nearly all former members of church choirs of all denominations, will present a Christmas concert on Dec. 17.

The choir will be enlarged to 40 members next year but only singers "who are really enthusiastic" are asked to join.

The choir has completed four rehearsals and progress, Mr. Killian says, has been very good.

DUNCAN—The Junior Women's Auxiliary to the King's Daughters' Hospital will remember the patients in the children's ward again this year at Halloween.

The children will be given a pumpkin, masks, and favors, Mrs. Bertha Mould, president, said today.

DUNCAN—A civic reception Saturday morning at City Hall awaits 40 members of the Loyal Order of Moose, Lodge 291, Portland, Oregon, who are travelling here by bus for a fraternal visit with the Duncan Lodge.

Bus carrying the American visitors will leave Portland at midnight tonight and the group is expected to arrive at City Hall at 10 a.m. Saturday.

Visitors will be welcomed by Mayor Jack Dobson, on behalf of the city, and Jack James, governor of the Duncan lodge.

Luncheon will be served at the Moose Home and in the evening the Portland Lodge ritual team will induct several new members.

CHEMUNUS—Chemunus hospital's children's ward building fund is richer by $269 today thanks to a donation from North Chemunus water users.

The amount was left on hand in the private account of the North Chemunus Water Users' Association when the municipality absorbed its water system. A meeting of members of the now defunct group this week decided unanimously to close out their old account by donating the money to the hospital fund.

NANAIMO—X-ray technicians from all parts of B.C. will meet in Nanaimo next Friday.

A discussion will be led by J. C. Saunders, chief technician at Vancouver General Hospital. Papers will be presented by Howard Ward, RCN, of Esquimalt, and Gerald Thompson, chief technician at Royal Columbian Hospital in New Westminster.

'Equipment Poor' At Plowing Match

COBBLE HILL—Dairy farmer Joe Saville who was one of B.C.'s representatives at the annual Canadian plowing match in Quebec said here it was a "very poor show."

Mr. Saville said his partner, Tom Hickman of Chilliwack, was given a tractor "in such poor shape that it took a day to get it running."

Mr. Hickman missed one day of the contest because of it.

"The radiator was almost falling off and the brakes wouldn't work," Mr. Saville said. "The ground was dry, hard and filled with boulders—about the poorest piece of land a man could find."

GOING TO TOP

Park Proposed On Mt. Prevost

NORTH COWICHAN—A recommendation by municipal forester F. G. Rainford that Mount Prevost be made into a public park after logging has ceased will be considered by North Cowichan council.

Reeve D. C. Morton said he was impressed by the wonderful view of the entire Cowichan Valley from the mountain side and top.

SPUR ROAD

Council approved the forester's recommendation that before logging in the area is completed a short spur road be constructed to the Lookout at the mountain top and a reservoir for fire protection be built.

Courtenay Voting On Sewers

COURTENAY—Supporters of a sanitary sewer system for Courtenay are hopeful that today's plebiscite will spell success for the $760,000 scheme.

"We believe most people realize the urgency of a sewer system for Courtenay," one alderman said. "We will get it if they go to the polls and mark their ballots."

Officials are pinning their hopes on a low monthly user rate reduced to $2.50. A frontage tax of 17 cents a foot annually will make up the balance of the required financing.

ANCIENT TOTEM PRESENTED

CAMPBELL RIVER—A 100-year-old Nootka totem pole has been presented to Campbell River Historical Society by Major George Nicholson, formerly postmaster and magistrate at Zeballos, now living in Victoria.

The 32-foot totem was presented to Mr. Nicholson 22 years ago by Chief Frank Saven of the Ehtusaht band which made him an honorary chieftain.

It has stood in front of Zeballos post office ever since. Its transportation from Zeballos to Campbell River was arranged by Ed Meade, president of the historical society.

It will eventually stand in front of a museum which the society hopes to build on the Tyee Plaza.

Awards to Students

Jeremy Stephen D. Winter, 110 Beach Drive, Victoria, has won a $100 Dr. Ernest R. Myers scholarship in medicine as part of $10,625 in scholarships and bursaries awarded to UBC students.

Pearkes Starts 'Sacred Mission'

SUN COMING AFTER RAIN
Next chance of sunshine for Greater Victoria probably will be Saturday afternoon, the weatherman said today.

Chest 'Rake-Off' Accusation Denied

Community Chest officials seethed today at accusations canvassers are collecting "commissions" on the donations they sign up.
Twice this week businessmen have suggested to canvassers they are getting a "rake-off."
"As far as we know no Community Chest on the continent pays commissions—or any other reputable charity," replied Chest president Eric L. Mallett.

Pearkes Starts 'Sacred Mission'

By FRANK RUTTER
A 72-year-old veteran of two world wars and countless political battles Thursday night stepped into the role of B.C.'s 20th lieutenant-governor as eagerly as a schoolboy into his first job.
From the moment he returned to Victoria, Maj.-Gen. George R. Pearkes, VC, displayed bounce and ebullience.
His enthusiasm dominated the ritual of his official entry into the job of lieutenant-governor when he took the oath of office in the drawing room of Government House.
The words were solemn, the sentiments restrained, but Gen. Pearkes sailed through the 12-minute ceremony thrilled and longing to get down to business.
His first official task was to greet a semicircle of some 50 guests who watched Chief Justice A. C. DesBrisay administer oaths of allegiance to Queen and province.
General and Mrs. Pearkes shook hands with them all and had a few words for most of them.

HE'S ALOOF NOW

As he chatted with Mines Minister Kenneth Kiernan and his wife, Juanita, he was heard to quip: "Well, I'm not in politics any more."
As the Queen's representative, the former Conservative defence minister and MP for Esquimalt-Saanich is technically aloof from politics.
A breath of new life came to the Rockland Avenue mansion with the Pearkes. Their first house guests are son John and his wife and 14-month-old Anthony, whose voice rang through the halls lustily just before the ceremony began.
Later Gen. Pearkes told Education Minister Leslie Peterson and his wife proudly about "my one and only grandchild."
The sole military tinge to the occasion came in Gen. Pearkes' formal speech in reply to congratulations from the chief justice.
The world is in an era "of fantastic speeds, the electronic brain and the satellite," said Gen. Pearkes.
The recent achievements in science hold unimaginable prospects for greater happiness and nobler human beings.
Dangers and pitfalls lie ahead, but "I pray that these advances be used only to help mankind in his quest for a dignified, happy and peaceful life."

DELIGHTED BY GUARD

Gen. Pearkes called the office of lieutenant-governor "the highest honor that could possibly have been given me."
"We now dedicate our services to the future," he said. He called the job a "sacred mission."
A dash of pageantry colored the general's arrival at Patricia Bay Airport Thursday at 2.28 p.m.
As he stepped from an RCAF Comet jet, a guard of honor clashed to attention, and a scarlet-coated drum band of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry played a general salute.
Gen. Pearkes almost ran down the steps from the Comet to B.C. soil.
A delighted smile lit up his face when he saw the 50-man PPCLI honor guard which came unsolicited as a tribute to his military status.
He whipped off his homburg as the guard presented arms.
Deputy Provincial Secretary L. J. Wallace greeted Mrs. Pearkes in the background as the general inspected both honor guard and band.

HOME AND HAPPY

Then as Mr. Wallace escorted him to a line of waiting officials of government and the armed forces, the General with spry step gave a jaunty tip of his hat to the guard.
"It's wonderful to be home," Gen. Pearkes told acting premier Eric Martin as he shook hands.
Also in the lineup were Provincial Secretary Westley Black, Air Commodore G. G. Truscott, deputy Maritime Pacific commander; Lt.-Col. James C. Allan, CO of the PPCLI at Work Point and Rear-Admiral E. W. Finch Noyes, RCN Pacific commander.
Gen. Pearkes had a special word for Lt.-Col. Allan about the honor guard. "A wonderful show," he said. "Thank you so much."
An RCMP escort ahead, he was then whisked to Government House in an official car.
As the swearing-in ceremony began to a grind and whirl of cameras and tape recorders in the green-draped drawing room, Mr. Wallace handed the oaths of office to the general.

COURAGE CITED

Cmdr. Gar Dixon, the lieutenant-governor's secretary, read the letters-patent of appointment signed by Justice Minister Fulton, State Secretary Noel Dorion and Chief Justice Patrick Kerwin, which cited the "courage, loyalty and integrity" of Gen. Pearkes as worthy qualities for his post.
The letters-patent gave Gen. Pearkes power of office under the British North America Act to be official administrator of the affairs of the province.
Gen. Pearkes then took the oath to the Queen, and kissed a Bible.
Next he swore his oath to the province to "well and truly execute the office and trust of keeper of the great seal" of B.C., and to "duly and impartially administer justice therein" and again kissed the Bible.
He and Chief Justice DesBrisay, who acted as "stand-in" lieutenant-governor until Gen. Pearkes' takeover, signed as witness to the oath.
The chief justice was first to congratulate the new lieutenant-governor. "It is an honor well-deserved and fitting tribute to your long and faithful service to the people of this country," he said.
The people of B.C. "will be very happy" at the appointment, he said.

'ENRICH FUTURE'

"My wife and I are most happy to return to this, our beloved province," Gen. Pearkes replied.
"In this province there are peoples of many racial origins. By contributing something of their heritage and culture, irrespective of race or creed, all can enrich our future development."
"We are all God's children. Each one of us in his own way and place, however humble, must therefore play his or her part towards the fulfillment of our country's destiny."
"In my life I have a wonderful helpmate. She and I will do our best to play the part now assigned to us."
Mr. Wallace then handed to Gen. Pearkes a small wooden box containing the great seal of B.C. "I now hand this to you for safekeeping," said the General, passing it to Provincial Secretary Black.
With that, he began the round of social greetings.
Among the first to shake hands with Gen. Pearkes were former lieutenant-governor Clarence Wallace and Mrs. Wallace.

VICTORIA, B.C., FRIDAY, OCTOBER 14, 1960—PAGE 17

Young Gunman Takes His Time and $40 In Robbing Merchant

'Midnight-Black Gun Levelled at My Heart'

Greater Victoria police today were searching for a young gunman who netted close to $40 Thursday night from a Victoria grocery store.
John Maloney, owner and operator of the Busy Bee store, said today he still felt "a little shaky."
A revolver was levelled directly at his heart from a distance of not more than 10 inches.
At 9 p.m. Thursday a young man came into the store, corner of Hillside and Prior, and approached Mr. Maloney who was behind the cash register.
"I thought he wanted life savers," said the owner. The rack is right in front of the cash register.
"YES, MONEY"
"I asked if I could help him, and he replied with only two words: 'Yes, money.'"
"I laughed at him, and asked 'What do you need the money for?'"
The man repeated "I need money," pulled out a gun and pointed it at me from the left side of the cash register.
The gun was "as black as midnight." It was levelled at my heart. It could have been a toy, I am not familiar with these things," said Mr. Maloney.
LEFT SILVER
The bandit demanded bills, and the proprietor gave him the bills in the cash register, about $40. The thief did not bother with the silver.
He then demanded Mr. Maloney look under the cash drawer for more money—a place sometimes used to keep bills of larger denominations.
Stalling for time—hoping someone would come into the store—Mr. Maloney removed the entire cash drawer and placed it on the counter, and lifted the metal cash container. The bandit saw for himself there was nothing underneath.
TOOK HIS TIME
"He was in no hurry," said Mr. Maloney, "and seemed to take his time."
The culprit then waved the proprietor to the rear of the store to where the wall telephone is located.
"I don't know whether the gun was pressing against me or not. But it sure felt close," said Mr. Maloney.
PHONE CUT
"He told me to lay down. Then he ripped out the telephone wires and walked quickly towards the store front."
"He said 'you stay there, I'm going to have another look around.'"
Mr. Maloney waited only a few seconds before getting off the floor and entering the grocery section of the store.
"I figured he would be gone."
At this point Miss Darlene Taylor, 2637 Graham, entered the store and the man brushed past her.
"He looked at me, and then walked off," she recalled.
U.S. PLATES
Ronald Hemming, 977 Nicholson, told police he saw a 1956 or 1957 Dodge car with California licence plates leave from the front of the store about the time of the robbery.
Mr. Maloney said he was not insured.

LAWYER ACCUSES POLICE 'Building Case While Man Jailed'

City police today were accused of keeping a man in jail here in order to have time "to build a case against him."
Lawyer David Hummel made the claim in city police court before Magistrate William Ostler on behalf of his client, Sidney Travers, 22, of 975 Fairfield, charged with possession of 68 rings valued at about $1,000.
"I put it that the Crown has no evidence these goods were stolen. It appears the police are trying to keep the accused in jail to try and build a case against him," he said.
ONUS WAS ON THE CROWN, said Mr. Hummel, to say if evidence had been obtained.
"Keeping a man in jail to unearth the facts is wrong," he stated.
NO PROOF
"You arise in court and make these statements without any proof," countered the magistrate.
Mr. O'Grady repeated that the investigation was still going on, but that the arrest of the accused had been made "on sufficient grounds."

She's Helping ... Are You?

Travers, arrested Oct. 6 and in jail since then, was released on $500 bail, and will appear Saturday when trial date will be set.
Earlier this week, Mr. Hummel in a letter to the police commission, said he would recommend redress through the courts if the commission failed to reach a satisfactory finding on treatment by police of his client.
He said Travers was arrested and held eight or nine hours without being charged or allowed to call a lawyer; that premises occupied by Travers and another person were searched without a warrant and certain articles taken, and that he (Hummel) had been refused permission to see the rings in question, even though a picture of them appeared in the Times.

ASK THE TIMES

Q. With reference to the RCN I notice that destroyer escorts are sometimes referred to as D.E.'s and sometimes as D.D.E.'s. Is there a difference and if so what is it? J.M.
A. The letters D.D.E. are simply a code designation and is the term used in official RCN documents to refer to destroyer escorts. The term D.E. is merely the more popular way to refer to this classification of ship.
Q. Who wrote "There's A Bluebird On Your Window Sill"? B.S.
A. Mrs. Elizabeth Clarke, a former Vancouver nurse, who died there July 29 this year aged 49. She composed the popular hit in 1947.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Perk Up Bored Appetites With These New Spices

By PENNY SAVER

No one will argue that it's a good thing to start the day off with a good meal but, if you have youngsters, most of you will agree that there are times when they rebel against "the same old breakfast"—even if it is bacon and eggs!

When this happens, pull a magician act and serve them scrambled eggs that will have them begging for "repeats!" This is easy if you add some of the instant-toasted-onions that are one of a new line of imported spices. Two tablespoons would be sufficient for six eggs. Jar, containing 1½ ounces, sells at 59 cents.

Another spice that's almost certain to prove popular with discerning housewives is chicken, seasoned stock. There's 4½ ounces in jar that's priced at 63 cents.

This will give a delicious flavor to cream soups and form an ideal base for stock. If you have someone in the family that's battling a cold germ, put one teaspoon of this in five ounces of boiling water and—presto—you have a nourishing bowl of chicken broth to serve to your patient!

Lemon and orange peel are other spices in this line. Two-ounce jar of orange sells at 69 cents while lemon comes in 1½-ounce jar, also priced at 69 cents.

Mothers of small children soon learn that a jelly dessert is always a favorite of the younger generation.

For variety, why not try new line that's being imported from England? Two five-ounce packages sell at 39 cents and flavors include tangerine, raspberry, strawberry, lemon, orange, greenapple and black currant. The last two have an intriguing taste and will have youngsters demanding you keep putting these on your shopping list!

This being the time of year when women all over the city are getting together, organizing bazaars, teas and other affairs, it's good to know that one downtown store has six 48-cup fully-automatic electric coffee urns that can be rented out at $1.25 a day for one urn, 75 cents for every additional day. Wise to remember this if you find yourself on a refreshment committee this fall!

DEAR ABBY

It's THEIR Problem—Not Yours!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: We gave our daughter consent to be married and now we are sorry. Her husband is nothing but a kid himself and they are not getting along. She is home with us now and wants to divorce him, but his parents are trying to talk her into going back to him. We don't know what to do. We found out after she married this boy that he had been in a mental hospital. His parents never mentioned this to us before he married our daughter. I think they were trying to get rid of him. There are no children involved. Should we try to convince her to go back to him and stay married, or not? She is 16 and he is 19.

TROUBLED PARENTS.

DEAR ABBY: You gave your consent to this marriage, now it's up to the married couple. They should talk to their clergyman or a marriage counselor. If he feels the marriage is hopeless, perhaps an annulment is in order. All the parents should stay out of it.

DEAR ABBY: We've lived in this apartment four years. The landlady is very nice to our faces but she is robbing us blind. She used my hot water until I put a lock on it. My son threw a ball in the basement window and when I went to get it, I saw her machine plugged into my socket. She has a key to my locker and I know she has helped herself to my canned goods and my husband's liquor. Don't tell me to "talk to her" because she'd deny everything. And don't tell me to move because my kids like living across the street from their school, and my husband is within walking distance from work.

ROBBED BLIND.

DEAR ROBBED: Put new

Lieut.-Gov. and Wife Happy To Be 'Home'

Delight in being back in British Columbia and especially in Victoria was evident as the new Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. George Pearkes met and talked to those attending the swearing-in ceremony at Government House Thursday evening.

The quiet friendliness evinced by the lieutenant-governor and his wife and their genuine pleasure in greeting old friends set the pattern for the new regime.

The first swearing-in of a lieutenant-governor in the new mansion was witnessed by representatives of government, and relatives of the new incumbent and his wife.

Former Lieutenant-Governor, Hon. Clarence Wallace and Mrs. Wallace came from Vancouver for the occasion. Also Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of British Columbia, Sherwood Lett and Mrs. Lett.

For the ceremony Mrs. Pearkes wore an iris blue crepe dress with pearl necklace, diamond brooch and an orchid corsage. Her whimsy hat was touched with tiny flat bows.

Mrs. Wallace was in black accented by a white mink cape. Her small head-hugging hat was completed with a veil over the forehead. Mrs. W. A. C. Bennett chose a navy-blue dress with flat lace trim at the neckline, a complementing hat and silver mink cape.

Mrs. Sherwood Lett wore a rust red ensemble with sable fur; Mrs. A. C. DesBrisay, wife of the Chief Justice of British Columbia, who conducted the swearing-in ceremony.

mony, chose a black ensemble with sable fur and tall brimmed velvet hat with striped ostrich feather trim.

ter-in-law of the new Lieutenant-Governor, was an attractive picture in a jacket dress of blue and black brocade with tiny black whimsy hat.

It was a happy family that posed for the photographer in Government House Thursday evening following swearing-in ceremony of Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes. From the left: Mrs. Pearkes' brother, J. U. Copeman, Victoria; Mrs. George Pearkes, her daughter-in-law, Mrs. John Pearkes, talking to the new Lieutenant-Governor and at the right, John Pearkes, a young Vancouver lawyer. Upstairs, peacefully sleeping through the ceremony, was baby Anthony, the John Pearkes' son and first grandchild of his honor and Mrs. Pearkes.

The basque bodice had a scalloped Sabrina neckline of lace; while the full skirt had a flat panel of lace and satin, extending down the front. Ninety-Two Years on Saturday

A century ago—minus eight short years—Mrs. Lydia Lewin was born in North Shields, England.

Saturday, friends at the rest home overlooking the waters of the Gorge, where she has lived since last January, will join her in a party to celebrate her 92nd birthday.

Victoria has changed quite a bit since Mrs. Lewin and her husband, the late Robert H. Lewin, came to try their luck in Canada in 1912. With the instinct of homing pigeons they headed straight for that "little bit of old England" known as Victoria, where they have lived ever since.

Their home on Albina Street was never lonely, although there were no children. Friends loved to visit with the Lewins, attracted perhaps by the infectious sense of humor that Mrs. Lewin is blessed with.

When she was visited this week, Mrs. Lewin was enjoying one of her favorite pastimes—knitting. On her needles was a piece of work in pale blue wool that looked suspiciously like a baby's matinee coat.

She explained that she loved knitting baby clothes and often surprised friends with a gift for the "new arrival". This particular coat was one such "surprise".

Asked to pinpoint the future recipient, our 92-year-old hostess merely smiled and said, "Now that would be telling!"

Although many of the modern gadgets are a mystery to her, Mrs. Lewin has an especial affection for one—the television set.

She rarely misses her favorite cowboy programs. "I love the horses," she confesses.

Highlights of her life are visits from her niece Mrs. Edgar Stonier, who lives with her husband at Cloverdale, B.C. On such days Mrs. Lewin is as engrossed in "looking nice" as any teen-ager going to her first big dance.

Although Saturday's birthday party, so her friends say, is planned as a big surprise,

Mrs. Lewin loves to relax by knitting.

it's highly unlikely that the guest of honor will remain completely unaware of what's brewing. After all, a girl likes to look her best at a party—especially such an important one!

Toastmistresses Review Structure

Mrs. J. Craig was toastmistress at meeting of Victoria Toastmistress Club No. 90 held in the Glenshiel Hotel. "Founder's Night," honoring the late Ernestine White, was theme. Speeches were "Structure of the Toastmistress Club," Mrs. J. R. Pipes; "Council Membership and Duties," Mrs. Oliver Kerr; "Regional Procedure," Mrs. T. Grant and "The International Aspect of the Toastmistress Club," Mrs. H. Mickelson.

New member, Mrs. Norma Matthews, was introduced by membership chairman, Mrs. Grant and gave her first speech. Panel, consisting of Mrs. A. Heller, Mrs. D. Blaine, Mrs. L. Grant and Mrs. G. Wilson, held discussion on "When, Where and Why, I Joined Toastmistress Club." They also discussed what they expected to gain from the club.

Mrs. P. Rayment was topic mistress, subject being "My Most Embarrassing Moment."

Speaking on this subject were Mrs. C. C. Warren, Mrs. Mickelson, Mrs. Matthews, Mrs. Bowering, Mrs. Kerr and Miss Pat L'Amie. Mrs. Wilson said grace and Mrs. Pipes presided. Evaluators were Miss L'Amie and Mrs. Warren. Vote of thanks was given by Mrs. Rayment.

NO SECRETARY

Mrs. Pearkes does not plan to have a personal secretary, she said Thursday evening.

Although former lieutenant-governor's wives have had a personal secretary, this is not the first time a chateleine at Government House has preferred to do her own correspondence. Mrs. Charles Banks also dispensed with a secretary.

Miss Ruth MacLean, who has acted as secretary at Government House since Mrs. W. G. Woodward was chateleine, retired when the Ross regime concluded and is now living in Vancouver.

Pantry Shower

Miss Glenda Lewis was hostess at a recent pantry shower in the Oxford Street home of her mother, Mrs. C. Lewis, in honor of bride-elect, Miss Laurelle Duncan. Gifts were contained in a box decorated in white and pale blue. Guest of honor was presented with mauve chrysanthemums in corsage. Corsages of yellow and mauve chrysanthemums were received by her mother, Mrs. R. Duncan and the groom-elect's mother, Mrs. Lewis. Guests included Mrs. S. Cross, Mrs. A. Peatt, Mrs. B. Cross, Mrs. W. McKinty, Mrs. J. Henderson, Mrs. R. Lewis, Mrs. E. Tidbury, Mrs. G. Goodfellow, Mrs. R. Cook, Mrs. G. Goldie and the Misses Carol Small, Donna McKinty, Kathryn, Dale and Linda Peatt, Sharon Henderson and Dorothy Croft.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Q. "I read your column every day and am wondering if you can help me with my problem. I am 33 years old, 5 feet 7 inches tall and weigh 140 pounds. My bust measures 37 inches, waist 28 inches and hips 40 inches. I have a large frame and feel and look skinny. My face looks haggard all the time, even though I get at least eight hours sleep. Is there anything I can do to improve my looks. I am so unhappy. My husband is always making nice remarks about other women and their beautiful looks and figures."

A. It is not very thoughtful of your husband to make such remarks, but perhaps he is teasing you or trying to make you jealous. Perhaps he just plain does not realize that it makes you unhappy. Don't let it "get you down". If you do so it will damage your personality and take the sparkle from your eyes. That is the last thing you need to do at this time.

Your weight would be just about correct for you if your frame were medium. Since you have a large build you are thin. Try a gain of 10 pounds. I think it will be quite becoming. Also, take hip-slimming exercise.

Q. "I am 18 years old and since I am overweight I have tried to go on a diet. Every time I start losing weight it is from my bust. How can I prevent this?"

A. When you count calories you lose weight all over, from the bust as well as from the rest of the body. Exercise can speed the loss in inches. In your case, I suggest that you take exercises to increase the bust measurement while losing weight. If you, or any of my other readers, would like to have these exercises, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet No. 7. Address Josephine Lowman, in care of this newspaper.

Q. "I am wondering what can be done for nail biting. I am 30 years old and for the last six months have bitten my nails terribly. It may be because I am nervous. Maybe I smoke too much. I smoke all the time. I have three children under six years old, the youngest is 20 months old. I wish I could do something about this bad habit. I never used to have it. I feel awful about it."

A. Nail biting is usually a nervous habit. Your excessive smoking is probably also partly due to nervousness. You have a big job with three small children. Why not cut down on your smoking and try in every way to build up your health?

I suggest that you have a manicure once a week. This will help you remember not to

BEAUTY HINTS

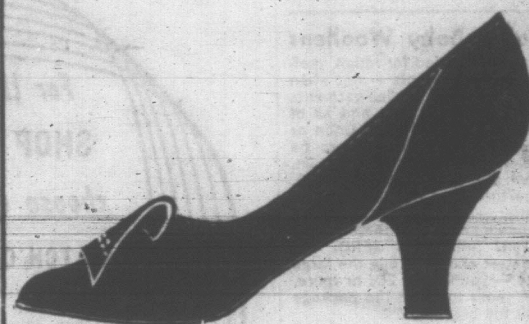

This year, Paris shows lovely black chiffon gowns embroidered in jet.

Paris likes the idea of the vamp of the 1930s, dressed in black up to her brows and down to her knees. Her dresses are hemmed in fur and her chin hidden in a high collar. Now it remains to be seen how American women like the notion.

If you're having trouble arranging a smooth French twist at the back of your hair, try asking your teen-age daughter for help. You'll find that she and her friends have practiced different hair styles so often that you've got a beautician in the family.

Cup and Saucer Shower

Pink and white decorated clothes basket contained gifts at a cup and saucer shower given by Mrs. R. Morley and Miss Heather Morley in their Cedar Hill Road home in honor of bride-elect, Miss Lillian Houston. Guest of honor was presented with pink chrysanthemums en corsage, while her mother, Mrs. J. 'Hurt, Annoyed by Churchill Statement'

(Ninth of a Series)

During the four months that elapsed between his return from Hyde Park and his departure for London, Mackenzie King's leadership was assailed bitterly on two grounds. His known opposition to the formation of an Empire Council or Cabinet in London was attacked by his opponents as anti-British and pro-American; his continuing opposition to conscription was represented as a lukewarm support for the prosecution of the war.

Mackenzie King felt these attacks on his leadership should be met by more positive information about the Canadian war effort and resolved to provide it by better organization of the machinery for public information, as well as by making speeches himself in the United States and by a tour of western Canada as soon as the session ended. This chapter will be largely concerned with the question of his handling of these attacks.

Growing Hostility

In addition to the question of an Empire Council, Canada's relations with Japan and France, and, briefly, with Ireland also occupied his attention. There had been a growing hostility to Japan since late in 1940, particularly in British Columbia, where there was strong feeling that Canadian exports of wheat and timber to that country should be stopped.

If the idea of an Imperial War Cabinet was killed, the idea of an Imperial Conference was not. On May 12, Mackenzie King received a telegram from Churchill in which he said a meeting of an Imperial Conference about July or August, for a month or six weeks, would be most desirable, if it could be arranged. Mackenzie King felt "very doubtful if this can be arranged."

He also wrote in his diary "that what Churchill is seeking to do is to satisfy public sentiment for the appearance of a complete Empire Advisory Board. I notice he uses the word Conference, not Cabinet. This suggestion has made me more determined than ever to take a Canadian tour in June."

"I would be better able in that way to size up the position of things in Canada. I can see, however, that I may have to consider also crossing over a little later. In any case, I should welcome the opportunity, but I will not take it, if I risk any possibility of cleavages either in the Cabinet or in the country through an absence which is full of risks and is mostly related to appearances."

Pearson Returns

It was at this time that L. B. Pearson returned to the Department of External Affairs from his tour of duty as second in command to Vincent Massey in the High Commissioner's Office in London.

On May 19, Mackenzie King "had a talk with Pearson, who has just returned from England. Very interesting conversation on the whole situation. He spoke of the amazing calm of the people and their determination. Feels a great concern about what may arise out of Vichy. Thinks Dupuy optimistic. Brought his latest report to me. Reported his readiness to begin work at once. Very modest, unassuming. He is going to be valuable to Robertson." This was the real beginning of Pearson's close association with Mackenzie King.

About a month later Mackenzie King was in the midst of preparing two speeches for delivery in the United States when, on June 12, he was upset by a message from Churchill suggesting that he come to England for a meeting in July while Peter Fraser, the Prime Minister of New Zealand, was there and "indicating if I would, he would then cable the other Prime Ministers."

"The truth is that in the last day or two, Churchill has been pressed in the House to arrange for such a Conference and to ease his own situation, he is trying to bring it about. Its practical value would, I think, be absolutely nil. Such a meeting would be fairly spectacular and would involve risks wholly unnecessary and most undesirable at the present time." Mackenzie King "could do nothing on either of the speeches until I got a draft of a reply to Churchill well under way."

He was relieved, on June 21, at word from Churchill "that Smuts cannot go to England this summer and that no demands would be made for crossing at least before the winter. Felt it, however, rather unfair. It shows Churchill places the onus on Smuts and myself for not having such a gathering. He may not do so. The latest word is that the statement (to the British House of Commons, about the possibility of a Conference) will be shown in advance."

Unfortunately Churchill's statement was not shown to Mackenzie King in advance, and the use made of it by his political opponents was embarrassing throughout his Western tour.

"I would be better able in that way to size up the position of things in Canada. I can see, however, that I may have to consider also crossing over a little later. In any case, I should welcome the opportunity, but I will not take it, if I risk any possibility of cleavages either in the Cabinet or in the country through an absence which is full of risks and is mostly related to appearances."

'Thinking of Self'

On June 24, the day he left Ottawa for the West, Mackenzie King was hurt and annoyed by what Churchill said in the British House as regards himself not being able to attend the Imperial Conference. It was clear he was thinking entirely of himself, of the attacks on his own Administration, seeking to shelter himself by stating with unnecessary abruptness and brevity that neither Smuts nor myself could come to London this summer. He had someone else send the communication saying he had to make the statement in a hurry.

"I admit it was a difficult position but, it view of the very full explanation I had given him and the quest made specifically to protect my position and, for the very best of reasons, which he himself acknowledged, I think he should have been a little more considerate. However, it was not expected."

"No doubt the Tory press will begin their attacks on me for not going to London and put it down to some difference in war effort, etc. It might come to result in a pretty serious cleavage. . . . I can only say that I cannot be at two places at once and that Canada is the place that needs me most. The place in which the Empire itself needs me most at this time. I am sure I am right in following my judgment in this matter. Lapointe said in Council this afternoon it was the only thing I could possibly do and all present agreed."

Attitude Changed During the course of his visit to the Western provinces Mackenzie King's attitude to a visit to Britain gradually changed, as he came to feel it would enable him to speak with greater authority as war-time leader of the country, though he continued to oppose formal Imperial Conferences or Councils. Meanwhile, the war was going badly. Greece was on the point of surrender and German intervention in Africa threatened Egypt.

The question of conscription for overseas service was being raised again and on April 23, Ralston, speaking to the War Committee of the difficulty of recruiting, brought forward for the first time, the possibility of conscription. As a means of avoiding conscription, Ralston advocated having trainees under the Mobilization Act take over coast guard duties to release volunteers from these duties for service overseas.

In doing so, Ralston referred to the division in the country that conscription would create and Mackenzie King said: "It would not only create divisions in the country, but it would have to be another Government, if that step were taken; that the people returned us with the understanding that there would be no conscription for overseas."

"I mentioned that there had been practically no recruiting meetings; that I thought the services of mayors, M.P.'s and others might be enlisted for that purpose, and that a real campaign for recruiting should be started before any thought of anything else. I said this would be the moment to make an appeal, when Greece was surrendering, and the dangers to the rest of the Empire would become more apparent. The truth is the higher wages and the certainty of employment in factories have brought numbers there."

'Unity Main Thing'

"This, I pointed out, will be intensified by what is implied in the Hyde Park Declaration. I have felt from the start that Ralston was allowing his men to have us take on more than we really should have in the Army, having regard to what we are doing in the air and the Navy. I am convinced that any compulsion for overseas service would undo a thousand-fold the good thus far achieved. After all the unity of the country is the main thing."

Agitation for conscription was somewhat unrealistic at a time when the Canadian Army was not in action, though the question of action for the Army was soon to be raised at the War Committee. On May 20 "Ralston brought forward a suggestion from the Defence officials that we should ask the British authorities to have our men put into action somewhere at once—if not in the Middle East, then on raids to France and elsewhere, even if it involved some being killed. This in order to help the recruiting campaign, the idea being that the fact that our men were not in action was causing very few to enlist."

"Power wanted some battalions raised to be sent at once to Egypt. This over and above what we were already committed for and beyond the numbers which it is alleged we were finding difficulty in raising. The motive of these actions was to have something 'spectacular' which would help the recruiting."

"I said at once that I would not countenance anything of the kind: that it might be my Scotch conscience, or it might be common sense, but I do not feel that any Government has the right to take the lives of any men for spectacular purposes."

'Highest Service'

"Moreover, I do not think we should interfere with the disposition of troops, when our policy was that of allowing the High Command to make whatever disposition was thought most effective. I pointed out that Canadian soldiers were doing the highest service in protecting the heart of the Empire and making it possible for Churchill and his Government to carry on with a sense of security for all parts."

It was primarily to make the war effort better known that Mackenzie King spoke at the Commencement at Princeton University and to the Canadian Society in New York in mid-June. Both speeches were quite successful and probably had more effect in Canada than in the United States. When he returned from New York on June 19 he started to prepare for his Western tour.

The purpose of the tour was to recruit and also as Mackenzie King put it, to "seek to overcome in the public mind the prejudices which the Tories are seeking to create against me."

"They are going out of their way to create a wholly erroneous impression as to my personality. It is part of the deconstruction and belittlement I have had from the beginning of my political career. . . . If I can, I should like to go on this trip, speaking without manuscript. This I should like to do with regard to the radio as well as regards general addresses." The hope of speaking was, in fact, not realized.

Before Mackenzie King's departure for the west, the whole course of the war was changed on June 22 by Hitler's attack on Russia. Mackenzie King was spending that Sunday at Kingsmere, and he took the news very calmly. He listened to Churchill's broadcast, which he described as one of his greatest. Mackenzie King contented himself with a statement to the press expressing very similar sentiments.

To him it was an immense relief to have the uncertainty of Russia's "position" cleared away and, instead of her continuing collaboration with Germany, having these two great forces in definite opposition one to the other."

Thinking of Visit

From the moment he returned from the west, Mackenzie King had a visit to Britain constantly in his mind. He mentioned the possibility to Malcolm MacDonald and Lapointe on July 14; and on July 26 told MacDonald he wanted to go on his own and not for a n y Imperial Conference. After he spoke to Howe of the visit on July 28, he began to make active plans. On Aug. 6, Howe told him a bomber plane was being fitted up for the flight.

Shortly after 6 o'clock that day (August 6), Malcolm MacDonald called to give Mackenzie King a message from Churchill about his proposed meeting with the President of the United States in Newfoundland. Mackenzie King was not surprised to hear they were to meet, but he was amazed that Churchill was bringing the Chiefs of Staff and the Permanent Head of the Foreign Office with him.

The message from Churchill expressed the hope that Mackenzie King would approve of the meeting. He did not really approve, but, instead, wrote in his diary: "I feel it is taking a gambler's risk, with large stakes, appalling losses, even to that of an Empire, should some disaster overtake the gamble. To me, it is the apotheosis of the craze for publicity and show. At the bottom, it is a matter of vanity. There is no need for any meeting of the kind."

"Everything essential can be done even better by cable communications, supplemented by conferences between officials themselves. Neither the prime minister of Britain nor the president of the United States should leave their respective countries at this time. It makes me more satisfied than ever that I have held out against going to England to an Imperial Conference simply for the show that this might create."

Canada Ignored Mackenzie King told Malcolm MacDonald he thought "the public in Canada and certainly some of my colleagues and my own officials will think it extraordinary that Churchill should have brought his own staff to negotiate with the United States staff, and ignored Canada altogether."

"While I had expected a personal visitation between Churchill and Roosevelt I had never thought of their bringing their representatives on Foreign Affairs and chiefs of staff, etc., for conference on war plans, leaving Canada completely to one side—simply saying that we would be told what had been done, though having no voice in the arrangements. I said I did not propose to make any difficulties about the matter but that it was on all fours with what has thus far been done between Britain and the States since they have been brought together."

SOLUTION MONDAY

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy. Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes. The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia, and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Address your questions to "Ask Andy," Victoria Daily Times. Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Robert Salasino, aged 13, of Utica, N.Y., for his question:

What is a Trap-Door Spider?

All spiders are spinners of silken thread, though not all of them use their gift of web weaving to catch insects. The trap-door spider uses her silk to make a comfortable home for herself and her children. There are various trap-door spiders living all over the world where there are insects. But in North America, we are most likely to find this interesting little creature in the desert regions of the Southwest.

In the world of spiders, papa does not count for very much. He is always smaller than mama and, sad to say, she very often eats him. The home life of the trap-door spider, as with most spiders, centres around the mother. As a rule, the smaller creatures of the world tend to be poor and neglectful mothers. But this rule does not apply to Mrs. trap-door.

Her home is a little burrow which she digs herself. It is about three-quarters of an inch wide and six inches straight down into the ground. The most careful of the trap-door spiders lines her little tunnel with a webbing of the softest silk. She makes a little lid to fit on the top and, of all things, this amazing lid has a hinge.

The little lid, or trap-door, is made of silk woven around bits of dirt. The edges of the tunnel and the trap-door are carefully beveled to fit together with perfection. The top of the door is covered with material to match the ground. The hinge is a web of elastic silk. When the little door is shut, the spider's home is absolutely invisible.

Children Kept at Home

In this cosy home may live, mama spider and a whole brood of little trap-door spiders. The children will stay here until they are almost grown, which may be eight months. After that, they will go forth to build their own trap-door homes. The first home each youngster will build will be just big enough to hold her. As she grows, she will enlarge it, maybe several times, until she is full-sized and ready to have youngsters of her own.

When hungry, which is often, the trap-door spider opens her little door and creeps out into the world. She waits for an unsuspecting insect to come by, then she pounces. As a rule, she does not leave her burrow except to dine. After dinner, she is very careful to close her trap-door tight.

Even so, she may fall prey to her enemies. Certain wasps are very fond of trap-door spider meat. They wait around, hoping that the spider will be slow in closing her door. A trap-door spider makes a very terrarium of soft earth and a fairly warm temperature. She will also need fresh insects for dinner. If well tended, she may live six or seven years in captivity.

GIRL, WASHING MACHINE JUST GOOD, CLEAN FUN

APPLETON, Wis. (UPI) — Police pondered today how they should charge five teenagers who put one of their number in a Laundromat drying machine for a lark. Police found a 17-year-old girl happily tumbling in the 37-pound capacity machine after they had received an anonymous telephone call saying there was something unusual taking place at the self-service Laundromat. The girl's companions, two 17-year-old boys and 17 and 16-year-old girls, had already left.

The youths told police they had no reason for the incident other "than the fun of it."

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK—The time has actually arrived, in this craziest of all possible worlds, when our best people go out nights and spend buckets of money—to hear themselves insulted.

"You idiot!" screams a fat bald comedian at them—and they're flattered. They break up laughing.

Jack E. Leonard, "the First Angry Young Man," and Don Rickles, "the Insultin' Sultan," are now indulging this very profitable entertainment gimmick at the Blue Angel and the Basin St. East and will doubtless get rich—if they don't get stabbed.

Ethel Merman was one of the most prominent insultees recently when the new masochism was launched on a city-wide basis with the two stars trying to out-insult each other after a diet dinner consisting of nasty pills.

Rickles merely commented, concerning her great voice, that she yells.

"Sorry to yell louder than you do!" he roared at her, ring-siding there. Ethel squealed happily.

Johnnie Ray was Insultee No. 1 at the Blue Angel—next to the management itself. Fat Jack E. Leonard declared that the decor (of that narrow room) was "Early Claustrophobia," added that the air-conditioning seemed to be coming in through a hot water bottle, stated that Johnnie Ray has a wonderful voice "It's too bad it's in Vic Damone's throat!" and further revealed that he is very happy just now "because I have made a two-year television deal."

"The payments are very reasonable, too," he added.

The two joints were jammed and will be for several weeks. Such is our night life n.w., you have to go out on the town and get insulted—to retain your self-respect.

THE MIDNIGHT EARL...

Judy Holliday's illness has now become a matter of considerable concern. ... Dick Haymes' career is really on the up: the Waldorf signed him for Dec. 12 through New Year's. ... CONFIDENTIALLY YOURS

—by Byrne Hope Sanders

MONTREAL, Oct. 6.—Opportunity takes many forms. Sometimes it can be the chance to buy something for your home and family at a saving. When this happens, there's no need to let a lack of ready cash stop you when you can buy it through the BANK OF MONTREAL Family Finance Plan. A low-cost, life-insured B of M Family Finance Plan Loan can be arranged to suit almost any salary as long as you can make monthly payments without hardship. So take advantage of opportunity when it comes a-knocking through the Family Finance Plan at your neighbourhood branch of "My Bank".

BELIEVE ME, IT'S SUCH A COMFORT to find a cough syrup that gives lasting, soothing relief. SUPER ANAESTHETIC SYRUP brings "two-way" relief from coughs of colds... one by soothing irritated throat membranes and two—by checking related symptoms of coughing spells, like sneezing and runny nose. You see, it contains Vitamin C and the exclusive antihistamine, Thonzylamine, to be found in all Super Anaesthetic preparations. Try it! I know you'll be delighted with the fast, gentle relief it brings. What's more, it's so easy to take! Youngsters and grown-ups alike enjoy the pleasant, cherry flavour of Super Anaesthetic Cough Syrup.

ALL THAT SPARKLES IS NOT CLEAN... for instance your kitchen sink, bathroom basin and tub may look immaculate, but dangerous sewer germs breed in every drain. That's why I urge you to use GILLET'S DRAIN CLEANER every week, to combat the filthy muck where these germs breed... because liquid disinfectants simply can't budge it. The big difference lies in Gillett's special churning, boiling action... leaves drains fast-running, clean and sanitary. So keep your kitchen sink a safe place to wash food and dishes, your bathroom basin and tub immaculately clean... by putting 2 tablespoons of Gillett's Drain Cleaner in every drain, every week!

BEWITCH YOUR FAMILY with this extra-special October pie—Cream-Topped Pumpkin Pie—the topping made with NESTLE'S PURE THICK CREAM. They'll want it for both Thanksgiving and Halloween Desserts. So be sure to keep several tins of rich Nestle's Cream handy. It keeps indefinitely, right on your kitchen shelf, ready to use in all kinds of cream recipes like this one: Combine contents of 1 (4 ounce) tin Nestle's Pure Thick Cream, 1 tablespoon sugar and ¼ teaspoon vanilla. Spoon over warm pumpkin pie and sprinkle with toasted chopped pecans.

NOW THERE'S TIME, while your youngsters are getting dressed for school, to cook them the best breakfast you can possibly give them... piping hot, nourishing RED RIVER CEREAL. And how satisfying to know, as they wave goodbye, that they've had the right kind of nourishment to give them a head start on a busy day! Yes, Red River is as nourishing as it's delicious—with a nutty, wholesome blend of cracked wheat, rye and flax. Active youngsters benefit from its extra energy values, while sedentary workers find it guards regularity. Easy to prepare—costs so little—Red River Cereal is the perfect beginning to any day!

PREPARING MEALS CAN BE AN ADVENTURE when you've discovered the flavour magic of MAGGI CHICKEN BOUILLON CUBES. Yes, all of us can now prepare meals with gourmet flavour by adding Maggi Cubes to stews, gravies and casseroles—by adding them to the boiling water when cooking vegetables, macaroni or spaghetti. I know you and your family will be thrilled by the delicious difference—so next time you're shopping, do look for the yellow and red package of Maggi Chicken Bouillon Cubes.

HERE'S A TIP ON SANDWICH MAKING that will make lunch on each slice of bread with smooth Blue Bonnet Margarine. This famous all-vegetable margarine has a special sunny-sweet flavor that makes bread, toast... in fact, just about everything taste better. That's because Blue Bonnet is all vegetable... with pasteurized skim-milk and Vitamins A and D added. This means Blue Bonnet is nutritious as well as delicious. It's good for growing children, good for the whole family. Next time you slice bread, spread it with Blue Bonnet margarine.

THERE'S SOMETHING SO GOOD about a fresh October morning... something that makes me feel like serving fresh-as-summer meals all winter long. And that's easy to do with sunshine-fresh AYLMEY Sweet Mixed Pickles to brighten your meals. Your family will love these favourites... Sweet Wafers, Small Gherkins and Green Tomato Pickle. And here's a tip for Tartar Sauce—simply chop Aylmey Sweet Mixed Pickles into mayonnaise to serve with a hot fish course. Delicious! Aylmey Pickles are priced to suit your budget—but it's that superb Aylmey Quality that makes them your very best buy!

I'VE JUST FINISHED READING a number of grateful letters from men and women who have suffered from neuritic and rheumatic pain. All the letters tell of the same wonderful experience... finding relief at last through taking TEMPLETON'S T-R-C's. If you, too, are a sufferer, right now is a good time to try T-R-C's because with every box you buy from your drugstore, you get a FREE trial of Templeton's brand new product, Flame Cream Liniment, for muscular aches and pains. So don't delay—get T-R-C's today!

MACKENZIE KING 'YOU DID'—'I DIDN'T'

He added that it all bore out my view that the only real position for Canada to take is that of a nation wholly on her own vis-a-vis both Britain and the United States. That we can never expect to have any recognition... in any other way. At the same time he recognized "Britain's problems in not wishing to bring Canada into a conference of this kind, because of being unable also to bring Australia, New Zealand and South Africa" and "the difficulties of the United States... particularly with Mexico and South American republics."

Protest Useless

He felt it would be useless to make a protest and did not intend to, but did want "to register at this time my own feeling and views in the matter. I have no doubt at all that the Tory press of Canada will now begin to say that neither Churchill nor the President have any confidence in myself, or feel it is necessary to take me into account. That will be the line of attack."

Malcolm MacDonald brought Mackenzie King word on Aug. 12 "that Churchill and the President had met and had agreed on a statement to be given to the press." The British Cabinet had been considering same. I pointed out to Malcolm that there again Canada was being ignored.

He read to MacDonald a message he had sent to Menzies earlier in the summer "about means of communication being perfect, and that we had no reason whatever to complain about not being consulted. Here, at once, the very opposite was taking place and over a matter with which we, of all parts of the Empire, were very immediately concerned, as it relates to both military and economic co-operation. I said I personally did not intend to make difficulty, but I could not prevent the effects that this kind of thing might have on others. It was the way in which the British lost their friends, wanting them in foul weather and ignoring them in fair. So long as they got their own way that was all they wanted." Mackenzie King delayed his departure for England long enough to make sure Churchill would be home from Newfoundland before he arrived. A few days before his departure, Howe telephoned (Aug. 14) to tell him "that Arthur Purvis had been killed in a plane accident that day which had cost the lives of some 20 pilots on board a plane about to start from England. This was bad news indeed."

"I confess, however, it did not give me the least sense of added danger in the matter of my own crossing. That is all in the hands of Providence. Frankly, I do not feel any concern of life itself though there may be unpleasantness in the travel itself, and a good deal of fatigue in the stay in Britain. I really think I shall enjoy the crossing and the stay, and, I hope and pray, the return."

Mackenzie King telephoned President Roosevelt in Washington on August 17 to congratulate him on the success of the meeting with Churchill. As there had been some suggestion of a visit to Washington before his visit to London, he told Roosevelt that he "thought it best to leave directly for the Old Country, before visiting him at either Washington or Hyde Park. I said now that the conference had taken place, that seemed the wiser course, and he agreed that I should come to see him when I got back. He said he would be either at Hyde Park or Washington and to come any time."

"I said I thought if I went to Washington first, my opponents might think I was taking my direction from the South, and he would understand my reasons for not wanting my motive misunderstood. He said he quite agreed." On Monday, August 18, Mackenzie King left Ottawa for Montreal to start next morning for Great Britain.

TV Opponents Both Satisfied

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The White House candidates resumed their hand-shaking, speech-making campaign tours today, still sharply split on Quemoy-Matsu defence and embroiled in several new arguments after their third TV debate.

GOP presidential nominee Richard M. Nixon, pleased with his showing on the television program, arranged a day-long motorcade through the Los Angeles area of his native California. He will deliver a major foreign policy speech before the World Press Forum tonight.

Nixon let it be known in advance of the speech that he intends to use President Eisenhower in his administration if elected. He may elaborate on this in the address.

Chiang's Men Say Islands 'Defensible'

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—Chiang Kai-shek's regime today angrily rejected U.S. Senator John Kennedy's views that the Nationalist islands of Quemoy and Matsu are indefensible and so should not be subject to any U.S. guarantee of protection.

A statement read by foreign office spokesman James Shen reiterated the Nationalist determination to hold the two islands just off the Communist mainland and said the blood of no American soldier needs to be shed on them.

The statement said Chiang's government has never requested U.S. forces to participate directly in the defence of the islands.

Two Offers For New City Hall

Mayor Promises Serious Study

A Vancouver firm has offered to build a combined $2,100,000 eight-storey city hall and office building for Victoria.

The development in plans for a new City Hall came Thursday when Marwell Construction Company submitted to city council a proposal for constructing a modern, functional reinforced concrete structure.

At the same time Dominion Construction Co., also of Vancouver, notified council it is preparing a new offer for construction of a $1,800,000 city hall.

Dominion Construction is the firm which offered a year ago to build a city hall at Blanshard and Courtney.

Mayor Percy Scurrell said today both proposals will be given serious consideration before council reaches any decision.

ON LEASE

The Marwell Construction Co. offers a new city hall on a lease basis.

Hugh Martin, president, said the present City Hall would be demolished and the eight-storey structure erected on the same site.

"It would be the first major office building constructed in downtown Victoria in the past three decades," he said. "The building would be designed and tailored primarily to meet the requirements of a City Hall and would also provide about 8,000 square feet of shop area. In addition, it would have four floors of office space for commercial and financial organizations," he said.

VICTORIANS

Mr. Martin named George Wheaton as local contractor, R. W. Siddall of Victoria, as architect, and Milton King as broker.

The proposal as outlined by Mr. Martin calls for the development company to purchase the present city hall site for about $135,000.

When constructed, the city would lease the entire building at a rental rate of about $165,000 a year.

The city at the same time would agree to lease back to the company at the same rate the shop and private office space.

Actual costs to the city to rent about 30,040 square feet of city hall space would be $165,000, he said.

UNDER $30,000

But he added the "true cost to the city, taking into account tax revenue from the property, maintenance and operations savings, and interest in the price paid for the property, would be less than $30,000 a year.

He explained that private tenants in the building would be subsidizing the city offices by paying higher rates than the city.

"In effect, the city would be paying per square foot of space less than some warehouses in Vancouver," he said.

Under the agreement, the city would take on financial responsibility if the development company could not meet mortgage payments on money borrowed to build the structure.

SOUND PLAN

But Mr. Martin said such a situation was "inconceivable." "This program for financing is extremely sound, since the revenue derived from reasonable rental rates is more than adequate to cover debt repayment and operating expenses," said Mr. Martin.

only go broke if it was impossible to rent the office space. He saw no possibility of the happening, even in hard times.

Mr. Martin said if the occasion ever arose that the city wanted to build a large centre, it would be able to terminate its lease.

BUY BUILDING

It would also have the right in seven years to buy the building at a fair appraised price.

He said one of the advantages of a large building with

S. Africa Warns Of K's Threats

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—South Africa's foreign secretary, Eric H. Louw, soberly warned the UN General Assembly today Premier Khrushchev's attacks on the UN structure may not be idle threats.

He also declared South Africa is concerned about what he termed Communist penetration in the continent of Africa, and Communist-inspired activity in his own country.

Most of his policy statement was devoted to lashing back bitterly at the 41 countries that have demanded a UN inquiry into charges of South African race discrimination, chiefly India.

"They do not come into court with clean hands," Louw said, reciting charges of discrimination against races and minorities he said prevails in India, Norway, Sweden, Liberia, Ghana, Saudi Arabia and other African and Middle East countries.

OTTAWA BOOSTS VALUATION

Foreign Cars to Cost More

By VICTOR J. MACKIE
(Times Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA—Prices of British and European cars imported into Canada after Dec. 1 will go up as a result of a decision by the department of national revenue.

The increase for imported European cars will be higher than that for British cars.

Effective Dec. 1 the national revenue department will increase the valuation of such imported cars leading to higher duties and taxes.

It has been estimated that on a European car with a list selling price at home of $1,500 the higher valuation could mean an increase in Canadian duty of about $60. Department officials however declined to confirm that estimate.

The new price tag on a small British car might go up by $30. The fact that the small British cars enter Canada duty free accounts for the difference.

There is a 17½ per cent Canadian tariff applied against German, French, Italian and other European car imports.

This is a move towards greater protection from foreign competition for the Canadian automobile industry.

It was made by the department in the course of its regular duties or re-examining valuations and fixing them higher or lower as the case may be in regard to the product's home market.

382 Firms Taken Over By Castro

Seizure Spares Canadian Banks

HAVANA (Reuters)—The Cuban government, in a sweeping new nationalization measure, today took over all banks in Cuba except the Royal Bank of Canada and the Bank of Nova Scotia.

A total of 382 companies were brought under state control under the new order, including American-owned banks and scores of other companies and 105 Cuban-owned sugar mills.

It was announced that Premier Fidel Castro will address the nation Saturday to explain why the nationalization laws were adopted.

NO IMMEDIATE REASON

There was no explanation immediately why the Canadian banking operations were exempted although a spokesman for the Royal Bank in Montreal said it might be to show that the Cuban government is opposed only to American capital having a stake in the country.

The nationalized banks will operate from now on as "agencies" of the Cuban Banco Nacional.

The law nationalizing the banks said:

"It is essential to transform the old banking structure of the nation and adapt it to new conditions of economic development created as a result of the revolutionary process."

ONLY 2 CANADIAN

The Royal Bank and the Bank of Nova Scotia are the only Canadian-owned ones with operations in Cuba. The Royal has 23 branches and the Bank of Nova Scotia eight.

The Bank of Nova Scotia which opened its first branch in Havana in 1906, employs a staff of about 250, of whom 96 per cent are Cuban. All but two of the eight managers are Cubans.

This was the first nationalization of Cuban-owned property, but the government previously had nationalized the bulk of U.S. investments in the country, including 36 sugar mills and banks, estimated to be worth a total of $1,000,000,000.

The new nationalization decree includes 50 textile factories, eight railways, 11 movie chains, 13 department stores, 16 rice mills, six distilleries and 11 coffee companies. Many had been intervened—that is, taken at least partially under government control—previously.

U.S. firms included in the decree included Dupont International Chemical Company, Pittsburgh Plate Glass International and Bohon Trading Corporation, which manufactures paper.

The U.S. embassy said about 20 U.S.-owned firms were affected.

MR. K. HOME SAFELY, FULL OF GOOD HUMOR

MOSCOW (Reuters)—Nikita Khrushchev returned to Moscow from the United Nations today, bubbling over with good humor and warm greetings for Communist Party leaders who met him at the airport.

Within minutes of his return, after an absence of 35 days, the Russian premier held an impromptu meeting on the airport runway with members of the Soviet Communist Party presidium.

EX-PREMIER IN DOCK

Turk Treason Trials Begin

YASSIADA ISLAND, Turkey (Reuters)—Adnan Menderes, ousted Turkish premier on trial for his life, appeared in court here today and complained haltingly in a weak voice that he had been kept incommunicado in a single room since his arrest.

The prosecution demanded death for Menderes and 36 others as a mass treason trial of 500 members of the ousted regime opened in this island fortress under a strict security blanket.

"For five months I have lived in a single room under constant guard," Menderes said. "I have spoken to no one except the investigating commission. One can't talk to one guard."

WANT LAWYERS HELP

Several of the accused complained they were given no opportunity to see lawyers.

More than 600 spectators crowded into the court room, a converted sports hall, to hear massive indictments against the prisoners—including Burhan Belge, a former deputy and first husband of movie star Zsa Zsa Gabor.

The prisoners face charges of abusing Turkey's constitution, misusing state funds and political corruption arising out of the Bayar-Menderes regime which ended its stormy 10-year rule in a blood-free army coup last May.

Details of the charge sheets issued Thursday show that Menderes is facing 10 charges, on three of which the punishment on conviction could be death.

SUICIDE ATTEMPTS

Bayar, 77, an economist and veteran politician, is reported to have twice made suicide attempts since his arrest by army officers in the uprisings which brought Gen. Cemal Gursel to power.

Intense public interest has built up over the trial. The Turkish press had billed it "the greatest since Nuremberg" where Nazi leaders were tried for war crimes.

The eight-member supreme court has the power to issue a judgment against which there is no appeal, but where the sentence is death, Gen. Gursel's national unity committee must confirm it before execution.

Police Smash Riot in Congo

LEOPOLDVILLE (Reuters)—About a dozen persons were killed in a demonstration of some 300 pro-Lumumba Congolese near Leopoldville's United Nations building.

Police used rifle butts, sticks and their boots to disperse the demonstrators, followers of ousted premier Patrice Lumumba, who also were parading in support of the UN.

Later a gang of young Lumumba supporters attacked Albert Ndele, a member of the provisional Congolese government in the centre of Leopoldville and tried to lynch him.

Plan Advanced For Conference Later in Month

OTTAWA—The federal government has asked the provinces to consider a tax collection system that would enable each provincial government to set its own rate of personal and corporate income tax.

Such a system has been advanced as an alternative to the present tax rental agreements, under which Ottawa alone sets the rate of taxation for all of Canada.

One official said initial reaction of the provinces is "quite cool."

In line with stated government policy, the principle of "equalization" would be maintained by the federal government under a tax collection system, utilizing taxes levied by Ottawa for its own purposes, an official said.

REVEALED AT BANFF

The plan was first set forth at a meeting of provincial and federal tax experts in Banff late last month by representatives of the federal finance department. The experts constitute a continuing committee handling the spadework for the 10 provincial governments and the federal government.

Finance Minister Donald Fleming will elaborate when the federal-provincial conference reconvenes the week of October 24.

A tax collection system is not a new concept. It was raised, and rejected, at the 1955 federal-provincial conference. And, at one time, Ottawa acted as the collection agency for the province of Ontario.

In effect the plan would mean a partial return to the prewar system of both federal and provincial income taxes.

The difference, however, would be that taxpayers would make out only one set of returns instead of two, as they did then. Under the present system Ottawa decides what the income tax levy should be, then returns a certain amount of it to the provinces under a complicated formula.

OTTAWA STANDARD

Here is how the proposed plan would work.

First, Ottawa would insist on a standard tax basis. To make the plan work easily, deduction levels would have to be the same in all provinces.

The federal government would then determine what percentage of tax it would require to meet its responsibilities. Assume this percentage to be 20 per cent of a $10,000 income, or $2,000.

A particular province would decide it needed 5 per cent of a $10,000 income, or $500, and enact income tax legislation.

Ottawa would act as the sole collection agency. It would collect a total 25 per cent from

Open Mind

B.C. government officials today were cautious about comment on the possibility of a new income tax system.

It's no secret, however, that the province prefers to maintain the present tax levying and collection system. Both amount of tax and collection are handled by Ottawa.

That taxpayers are protected by the present system from "overlapping" of taxes.

However, B.C. will go into the fiscal conference with an open mind on any suggestions from Ottawa.

'MAN OF WAR'

Cuba Woman Delegate Quits Castro

NEW YORK (AP)—A woman of the Cuban delegation to the United Nations quit her post today saying Premier Fidel Castro had turned her country into a police state where the people were living under a reign of terror.

Miss Teresa Casuso, once one of Castro's most-enthusiastic supporters, said she had written the revolutionary leader a 15-page letter telling him what she now thought.

To reporters in her apartment Miss Casuso asserted that Castro's "mind and soul have been affected."

"He became embittered with great resentment against the United States because of help they were giving at the last minute to Batista and everything that smelled American was to him something hateful," Miss Casuso said.

LIVED AWAY FROM CUBA

One of three members of the delegation given the rank of ambassador by Cuba, Miss Casuso acknowledged that she had lived most of her life outside her country.

But she said her father and mother were living in Cuba, and that she feared for their safety.

Miss Casuso described Castro as a "man of war."

"He has to be at war with everybody—with the world—because he's at war with himself," she said.

Ike Roving Envoy

NEW YORK (AP)—President Eisenhower has agreed to serve as a roving ambassador if Vice-President Nixon is elected president, it was reported today.

The New York Herald Tribune and the New York Times carried the report in dispatches.

Nixon is off a campaign tour. White House press secretary James C. Hagerty said in Washington that he had never heard anything about a roving ambassadorship and that he had no comment.

44 More Agents to Police Jobless Fraud Cases

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—A 50 per cent increase has been authorized in the investigation and enforcement division of the Unemployment Insurance Commission to try and stamp out fraud.

Approval has been given by the Treasury Board to a special estimate of the Labor department to provide for the salaries of an additional 44 investigators.

The Civil Service Commission is preparing to call applicants for examination.

This will increase the strength of the enforcement division's "police force" from 78 to 122 agents.

Officials said they were determined to root out fraud.

The enforcement division last year in 73,547 investigations recovered $2,000,000 in fraudulent unemployment insurance claims.

This was "only scratching

the surface," said division officers.

But with only 74 investigators covering all Canada the enforcement officers have admitted they were "swamped." They got Labor Minister Michael Starr's quick approval for a 50 per cent increase in staff.

The unemployment insurance was being drained of about $30,000,000 annually through fraudulent practices, it was estimated here.

Loss-Leader Test Case In Saanich

Legality of loss-leader commodities in food stores was challenged Thursday in a test case in Saanich police court.

Henry Eng, of IGA Foodliner, 3475 Quadra, is charged with violation of the Commodities Minimum Loss Act, 1937, a provincial statute requiring at least 5 per cent markup on wholesale price.

It is alleged he sold Grade A large eggs, which he bought for 38 cents a dozen, for 39 cents a dozen during a sale March 14-19, 1960.

ULTRA VIRES

The statute is ultra vires the Province of British Columbia in that it purports to deal with a subject assigned to the Parliament of Canada under the British North America Act.

"I don't intend to advance argument in support of that submission at the present time and this is not the court in which to raise a constitutional question of some complexity."

"But I think it right to raise the point in case Your Honor wants to go into it," he told Magistrate William Ostler.

AT 36c

In cross-examination by Mr. Haldane, George Young, Ganges egg salesman who delivered eggs at wholesale price to the Foodliner, said he had made February delivery of Grade A large eggs at 36 cents a dozen.

He could not tell the court whether the eggs sold (retail) in March were those bought (wholesale) in February.

Charles Walls, manager of the British Columbia Federation of Agriculture, said his organization became interested in the matter when Agriculture Minister Newton Steacy failed to act on requests of poultry producers.

He said that at a banquet meeting on July 16, 1958, Mr. Steacy promised to prosecute if poultrymen would produce evidence of Commodities Act violation.

SERIOUS THREAT

The minister was told loss-leaders were becoming a serious threat, the witness said.

"Then this, to your knowledge, is being put on as a test case?" Mr. Haldane asked.

"That's right," said Walls. "Since he (the minister) took no action, then we became interested in it."

He said evidence was given to Mr. Steacy, March 17, 1960, and on March 24 it was returned by deputy attorney-general Gilbert Kennedy, who said the organization would have to pay for the prosecution.

The hearing was adjourned to October 25 to complete the Crown's case with evidence of about eight more witnesses.

CLC LEAVES DOOR OPEN TO TEAMSTERS

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian Labor Congress appears to be accepting a period of peaceful co-existence with the maverick Teamsters Brotherhood, informants indicated Thursday night.

The thorny Teamster issue was raised at the CLC's high-level executive council session but no new course was charted, sources said.

The Teamsters' Union was expelled four months ago from the congress—parent body of Canada's organized labor movement—for raiding the membership of another CLC-affiliated union, a violation of the constitution.

Since then, top CLC and Teamster officials have met secretly to see if a reconciliation was possible.

By neither opening nor slamming the congress door, the council left the next move up to the Teamsters.

FIRST OF THOUSANDS of speeches he'll make during his term of office was made by George Pearkes Thursday night just after he took oath of office as B.C.'s new lieutenant-governor. Listening in background are Lawrie Wallace, deputy provincial secretary; Cmdr. Gar Dixon, private secretary; Mrs. Pearkes and Chief Justice DesBrisay. (Halkett Photo.)

Pearkes Starts 'Sacred Mission'

By FRANK RUTTER

A 72-year-old veteran of two world wars and countless political battles Thursday night stepped into the role of B.C.'s 20th lieutenant-governor as eagerly as a schoolboy into his first job.

From the moment he returned to Victoria, Maj.-Gen. George R. Pearkes, VC, displayed bounce and ebullience.

His enthusiasm dominated the ritual of his official entry into the job of lieutenant-governor when he took the oath of office in the drawing room of Government House.

The words were solemn, the sentiments restrained, but Gen. Pearkes sailed through the 12-minute ceremony thrilled and longing to get down to business.

His first official task was to greet a semicircle of some 50 guests who watched Chief Justice A. C. DesBrisay administer oaths of allegiance to Queen and province.

General and Mrs. Pearkes shook hands with them all and had a few words for most of them.

HE'S ALOOF NOW

As he chatted with Mines Minister Kenneth Kiernan and his wife, Juanita, he was heard to quip: "Well, I'm not in politics any more."

As the Queen's representative, the former Conservative defence minister and MP for Esquimalt-Saanich is technically aloof from politics.

A breath of new life came to the Rockland Avenue mansion with the Pearkes. Their first house guests are son John and his wife and 14-month-old Anthony, whose voice rang through the halls lustily just before the ceremony began.

Later Gen. Pearkes told Education Minister Leslie Peterson and his wife proudly about "my one and only grandchild."

The sole military tinge to the occasion came in Gen. Pearkes' formal speech in reply to congratulations from the chief justice.

The world is in an era "of fantastic speeds, the electronic brain and the satellite," said Gen. Pearkes.

"The recent achievements in science hold unimaginable prospects for greater happiness and nobler human beings."

Dangers and pitfalls lie ahead, but "I pray that these advances be used only to help mankind in his quest for a dignified, happy and peaceful life."

DELIGHTED BY GAURD

Gen. Pearkes called the office of lieutenant-governor "the highest honor that could possibly have been given me."

"We now dedicate our services to the future," he said. He called the job a "sacred mission."

A dash of pageantry colored the general's arrival at Patricia Bay Airport Thursday at 2:28 p.m.

As he stepped from an RCAF Comet jet, a guard of honor clashed to attention, and a scarlet-coated drum band of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry played a general salute.

Gen. Pearkes almost ran down the steps from the Comet to B.C. soil.

A delighted smile lit up his face when he saw the 50-man PPCLI honor guard which came unsolicited as a tribute to his military status.

He whipped off his homburg as the guard presented arms.

HOME AND HAPPY

Then as Mr. Wallace escorted him to a line of waiting officials of government and the armed forces, the General with a jaunty step gave a jaunty tip of his hat to the guard.

"It's wonderful to be home," Gen. Pearkes told acting premier Eric Martin as he shook hands.

Also in the lineup were Provincial Secretary Wesley Black, Air Commodore G. G. Truscott, deputy Maritime commander; Lt.-Col. James C. Allan, CO of the PPCLI at Work Point and Rear-Admiral E. W. Finch Noyes, RCN Pacific commander.

Gen. Pearkes had a special word for Lt.-Col. Allan about the honor guard. "A wonderful show," he said. "Thank you so much."

An RCMP escort ahead, he was then whisked to Government House in an official car.

As the swearing-in ceremony began to a grind and whirr of cameras and tape recorders in the green-draped drawing room, Mr. Wallace handed the oaths of office to the general.

COURAGE CITED

Cmdr. Gar Dixon, the lieutenant-governor's secretary, read the letters patent of appointment signed by Justice Minister Fulton, State Secretary Noel Dorion and Chief Justice Patrick Kerwin, which cited the "courage, loyalty and integrity" of Gen. Pearkes as worthy qualities for his post.

The letters patent gave Gen. Pearkes power of office under the British North America Act to be official administrator of the affairs of the province.

Gen. Pearkes then took the oath to the Queen, and kissed a Bible.

Next he swore his oath to the province to "well and truly execute the office and trust of keeper of the great seal" of B.C., and to "duly and impartially administer justice therein" and again kissed the Bible.

He and Chief Justice DesBrisay, who acted as "standing" lieutenant-governor until Gen. Pearkes' takeover, signed as witness to the oath.

The chief justice was first to congratulate the new lieutenant-governor. "It is an honor well-deserved and fitting tribute to your long and faithful service to the people of this country," he said.

The people of B.C. "will be very happy" at the appointment, he said.

'ENRICH FUTURE'

"My wife and I are most happy to return to this, our beloved province," Gen. Pearkes replied.

"In this province there are peoples of many racial origins. By contributing something of their heritage and culture, irrespective of race or creed, all can enrich our future development."

"We are all God's children. Each one of us in his own way and place, however humble, must therefore play his or her part towards the fulfillment of our country's destiny."

"In my wife I have a wonderful helpmate. She and I will do our best to play the part now assigned to us."

Mr. Wallace then handed to Gen. Pearkes a small wooden box containing the great seal of B.C. "I now hand this to you for safekeeping," said the General, passing it to Provincial Secretary Black.

With that, he began the round of social greetings. Among the first to shake hands with Gen. Pearkes were former lieutenant-governor Clarence Wallace and Mrs. Wallace.

Today, the first social duty performed, Lieutenant-Governor Pearkes settled down to the affairs of state. His first batch of cabinet orders already awaits signature.

Young Gunman Takes His Time and $40 In Robbing Merchant

'Midnight-Black Gun Levelled at My Heart'

Greater Victoria police today were searching for a young gunman who netted close to $40 Thursday night from a Victoria grocery store.

John Maloney, owner and operator of the Busy Bee store, said today he still felt "a little shaky."

A revolver was levelled directly at his heart from a distance of not more than 10 inches.

At 9 p.m. Thursday a young man came into the store, corner of Hillside and Prior, and approached Mr. Maloney who was behind the cash register.

"I thought he wanted life savers," said the owner. The rack is right in front of the cash register.

"YES, MONEY"

"I asked if I could help him, and he replied with only two words: 'Yes, money.'"

"I laughed at him, and asked 'What do you need the money for?'"

The man repeated "I need money," pulled out a gun and pointed it at me from the left side of the cash register."

The gun was "as black as midnight." It was levelled at my heart. "It could have been a toy, I am not familiar with these things," said Mr. Maloney.

LEFT SILVER

The bandit demanded bills, and the proprietor gave him the bills in the cash register, about $40. The thief did not bother with the silver.

He then demanded Mr. Maloney look under the cash drawer for more money—a place sometimes used to keep bills of larger denominations.

Stalling for time—hoping someone would come into the store—Mr. Maloney removed the entire cash drawer and placed it on the counter, and lifted the metal cash container. The bandit saw for himself there was nothing underneath.

TOOK HIS TIME

"He was in no hurry," said Mr. Maloney. "and seemed to take his time."

The culprit then waved the proprietor to the rear of the store to where the wall telephone is located.

"I don't know whether the gun was pressing against me or not. But it sure felt close," said Mr. Maloney.

PHONE CUT

"He told me to lay down. Then he ripped out the telephone wires and walked quickly towards the store front."

"He said 'You stay there, I'm going to have another look around.'"

Mr. Maloney waited only a few seconds before getting off the floor and entering the grocery section of the store.

"I figured he would be gone."

At this point Miss Darlene Taylor, 2637 Graham, entered the store and the man brushed past her.

"He looked at me, and then walked off," she recalled.

U.S. PLATES

Ronald Hemming, 977 Nicholson, told police he saw a 1956 or 1957 Dodge car with California licence plates leave from the store at the time of the robbery.

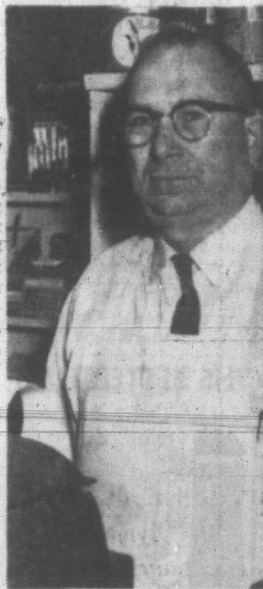

Mr. Maloney said he was not insured.

He described the gun-toting thief as about five-foot eight inches in height, between 22 and 25 years of age, weighing about 135 pounds and clad in a light short jacket, light-colored pants and wearing a distinctive peaked baseball cap. "He was very quietly spoken."

The store was robbed a half-hour before closing time.

Mr. Maloney has been on the site 12 years and the store was broken into nine years ago.

Last hold-up in Greater Victoria was Dec. 2, 1959 when De Jong's Service Station, 3393 Douglas was victimized. The culprit was subsequently caught and convicted.

LAWYER ACCUSES POLICE

'Building Case While Man Jailed'

City police today were accused of keeping a man in jail here in order to have time "to build a case against him."

Lawyer David Hummel made the claim in city police court before Magistrate William Ostler on behalf of his client, Sidney Travers, 22, of 975 Fairfield, charged with possession of 68 rings valued at about $1,000.

"I put it that the Crown has no evidence these goods were stolen. It appears the police are trying to keep the accused in jail to try and build a case against him," he said.

She's Helping ... Are You?

TODAY'S COMMUNITY CHEST PERSONALITY is Mrs. Bernhard Kjekstad, housewife, of 3461 Bonair Place, who is area chairman of the downtown section of the residential division in this year's campaign. She has been a volunteer in the past 10 campaigns. Mrs. Kjekstad is a member of the PEO-sisterhood and the women's committee for the city hall.

Far $67,508 has been raised towards the campaign's 1960 goal of $350,000.

Magistrate Ostler said: "I'm quite sure Mr. O'Grady (Crown prosecutor T. P. O'Grady) would not countenance such action by the police. I simply don't believe it."

Mr. O'Grady said the investigation isn't completed, but added he was not "free to say" at this time in what manner the investigation had not been completed.

Onus was on the Crown, said Mr. Hummel, to say if evidence had been obtained.

"Keeping a man in jail to unearth the facts is wrong," he stated.

NO PROOF

"You arise in court and make these statements without any proof," countered the magistrate.

Mr. O'Grady repeated that the investigation was still going on, but that the arrest of the accused had been made "on sufficient grounds."

Travers, arrested Oct. 6 and in jail since then, was released on $500 bail and will appear Saturday when trial date will be set.

Earlier this week, Mr. Hummel in a letter to the police commission, said he would recommend redress through the courts if the commission failed to reach a satisfactory finding on treatment by police of his client.

He said Travers was arrested and held eight or nine hours without being charged or allowed to call a lawyer; that premises occupied by Travers and another person were searched without a warrant and certain articles taken, and that he (Hummel) had been refused permission to see the rings in question, even though a picture of them appeared in the Times.

ASK The TIMES

Q. With reference to the RCN I notice that destroyer escorts are sometimes referred to as D.E.s and sometimes as D.D.E.s. Is there a difference and if so what is it? J.M.

A. The letters D.D.E. are simply a code designation and is the term used in official RCN documents to refer to destroyer escorts. The term D.E. is merely the more popular way to refer to this classification of ship.

Q. Who wrote "There's A Bluebird On Your Window Sill"? B.S.

A. Mrs. Elizabeth Clarke, a former Vancouver nurse, who died there July 29 this year aged 49. She composed the popular hit in 1947.

Special Plan to Teach New Skills to Jobless

SUN COMING AFTER RAIN

Next chance of sunshine for Greater Victoria probably will be Saturday afternoon, the weatherman said today.

"And there is a little promise of a little more sun Sunday," he said.

But there still will be sporadic clouds both days, with rain predicted to night and Saturday morning as a new weather system settles over the area.

Weekend daytime temperatures will reach a high of 55 degrees, but nights will be quite warm, 47-48 degrees.

A program aimed at beating unemployment through education was announced here today.

An emergency training program to boost skills and educational standards of B.C.'s unemployed will get under way in November, Education Minister Leslie Peterson announced.

Main project will be special day school classes for adults to get up to a Grade 12 education.

Other courses include upgrading of vocational skills, practical nursing, commerce, first aid, bookkeeping, waitressing and a fishermen's school.

A meeting in Victoria next week will set up accommodation and staff to handle local courses.

Other meetings of interested parties will be held in Vancouver and Nanaimo.

The federal government will pay 75 per cent of the cost, with the province footing one-quarter of the bill.

The program is aimed specifically at combatting unemployment. It is a special extension of existing vocational and technical facilities. The day school plan is new.

Ottawa has offered to increase its aid from 50 per cent to provinces which can show a certain level of facilities.

B.C.'s application, one of the first, was made this week.

DEPEND ON RESPONSE

Amount of money involved is "difficult to say," said Mr. Peterson.

It will depend on how many persons come into the courses. National surveys disclosed 66 per cent of those unemployed had less than grade 10 education, he said.

There is a definite relationship between education and employment. Experimental day classes will show the exact tie, he said.

Highest rates of unemployment and lowest educational standards occur in construction and fishing, he said.

The meeting in Victoria will be headed by vocational education director J. S. White.

He said today he will invite national employment service officials, education and labor representatives and other interested citizens.

NOMINAL FEES

The meeting will discuss staff and accommodation, he said. Space for academic classes in Victoria will be rented. Hospitals will be asked to co-operate in nurses' training.

Fees will be nominal, said Mr. Peterson, and in cases of need will be borne by the government.

The NES will steer most of the candidates into the various courses, he said.

City Block Demolition In New Year

A $500,000 three-story office building will arise on part of the old Balmoral-Block at the northeast corner of Douglas and Fort next year.

The building will incorporate Canada Permanent Mortgage Corporation, private offices and two stores.

C. W. Conrad, manager of Canada Permanent Mortgage, said today demolition will begin Jan. 1. Construction will start Feb. 1, with occupancy scheduled for Sept. 1.

The company purchased part of the block in April. Earlier this year the Canadian Bank of Commerce purchased the remainder of the Balmoral Block.

A bank spokesman said the Commerce has no immediate plans for development there. Tenants of the bank-owned section have not been given notice to vacate.

Mr. Conrad said the top two floors of the new building will be available for private offices.

Canada Permanent Mortgage will occupy ground floor office space along with two small stores.

Dominion Construction has been awarded a package contract for demolition and construction.

Chest 'Rake-Off' Accusation Denied

Community Chest officials seethed today at accusations canvassers are collecting "commissions" on the donations they sign up.

Twice this week businessmen have suggested to canvassers they are getting a "rake-off."

"As far as we know no Community Chest on the continent pays commissions — or any other reputable charity," replied Chest president Eric L. Mallett.

Sid Smith, president of the Life Underwriters' Association, which voluntarily runs the industrial payroll canvass for the Chest, also was angered at the suggestion. He denied canvassers receive commissions and said:

"We presume a certain section of the community just can't understand some people will do something for nothing."

A complaint from a Saanich businessman Thursday sparked the Chest replies.

$50,000 Art Theft in Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP)—Two dozen oil paintings worth an estimated $50,000 have been stolen from a private art gallery in south-end Vancouver.

The theft, reported today, took place Thursday night.

The Alex Fraser Gallery had obtained them from the H. R. Cresner Galleries of St. James Place in London. Their exhibition and sale started Oct. 1 and was to close next Tuesday.

It was the third major art theft here this year.

Civil Service Group Asks Strike

PORT COQUITLAM (CP)—Some civil servants at nearby Essondale Mental Hospital voted Thursday to seek support for a strike of the province's government employees.

About 60 of the 1,500 employees at the sprawling institution said the bid was an objection to Tuesday's government announcement that the check-off of civil service union dues from payrolls was being discontinued.

Air-Ground Search for Lost Boy

FORT RESOLUTION, N.W.T. (UPI)—Air and ground parties combed dense bush on the south shore of Great Slave Lake for the sixth day today in a search for a 12-year-old boy who has been missing since Saturday.

Herbert Lafferty disappeared while he was collecting rabbits from snares in bush land south of Fort Resolution with his grandfather, Napoleon Lafferty.

Two Offers Made
On New City Hall

A Vancouver firm has offered to build a combined $2,100,000 eight-story city hall and office building for Victoria.

The development in plans for a new City Hall came Thursday when Marwell Construction Company submitted to city council a proposal for constructing a modern, functional reinforced concrete structure.

At the same time Dominion Construction Co., also of Vancouver, notified council it is preparing a new offer for construction of a $1,800,000 city hall.

Dominion Construction is the firm which offered a year ago to build a city hall at Blanshard and Courtney.

Mayor Percy Scurrell said today both proposals will be given serious consideration before council reaches any decision.

ON LEASE

The Marwell Construction Co. offers a new city hall on a lease basis.

Hugh Martin, president, said the firm would build, demolish, and the eight-story structure erected on the same site.

"It would be the first major office building constructed in downtown Victoria in the past three decades," he said. "The building would be designed and tailored primarily to meet the requirements of a City Hall and would also provide about 8,000 square feet of shop area."

"In addition, it would have four floors of office space for commercial and financial organizations," he said.

VICTORIANS

Mr. Martin named George Wheaton as local contractor, R. W. Siddall of Victoria, as architect, and Milton King as broker.

The proposal as outlined by Mr. Martin calls for the development company to purchase the present city hall site for about $135,000.

When constructed, the city would lease the entire building at a rental rate of about $165,000 a year.

The city at the same time would agree to lease back to the company at the same rate the shop and private office space.

Gross costs to the city to rent about 30,040 square feet of city hall space would be $102,424, he said.

UNDER $30,000

But he added the "net cost to the city, taking into account tax revenue from the property, maintenance and operations savings, and interest in the price paid for the property, would be less than $30,000 a year."

He explained that private tenants in the building would be subsidizing the city offices by paying higher rates than the city.

"In effect, the city would be paying per square foot of space less than some warehouses in Vancouver," he said.

Under the agreement, the city would take on financial responsibility if the development company could not meet mortgage payments on money lent to it.

SOUND PLAN

But Mr. Martin said such a situation was "inconceivable."

"This program for financing is extremely sound, since the revenue derived from reasonable rental rates is more than adequate to cover debt repayment and operating expenses," said Mr. Martin.

He said the company could only go broke if it was impossible to rent the office space. He saw no possibility of this happening, even in hard times.

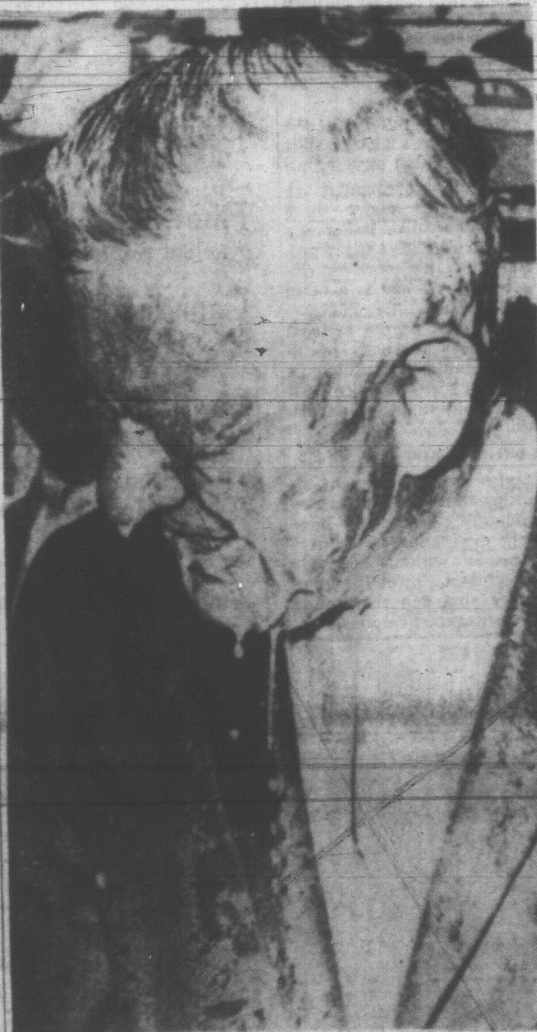

Mr. Martin said if the occasion ever arose that the city wanted to build a large centre, it would be able to terminate its lease.

BUY BUILDING

It would also have the right in seven years to buy the building at a fair appraised price.

He said one of the advantages of a large building with

S. Africa Warns
Of K's Threats

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—South Africa's foreign secretary, Eric H. Louw, soberly warned the UN General Assembly today Premier Khrushchev's attacks on the UN structure may not be idle threats.

He also declared South Africa is concerned about what he termed Communist penetration in the continent of Africa and Communist-inspired activity in his own country.

Most of his policy statement was devoted to lashing back bitterly at the 41 countries that have demanded a UN inquiry into charges of South chiefly India.

"They do not come into court with clean hands," Louw said, reciting charges of discrimination against races and minorities he said prevails in India, Norway, Sweden, Liberia, Ghana, Saudi Arabia and other African and Middle East countries.

The consul-general, Abelardo Leon Blanco, was taken to hospital after a band of Cubans swarmed through his office, smashed the furniture and beat him Thursday. He was released after treatment.

This and other incidents followed the execution of 13 men, including an American, by Castro's firing squads.

Police used rifle butts, sticks and their boots to disperse the demonstrators, followers of ousted premier Patrice Lumumba who also were parading in support of the UN.

Later a gang of young Lumumba supporters attacked Albert Ndele, a member of the provisional Congolese government in the centre of Leopoldville and tried to lynch him.

382 Firms
Taken Over
By CastroSeizure Spares
Canadian Banks

HAVANA (Reuters)—The Cuban government, in a sweeping new nationalization measure, today took over all banks in Cuba except the Royal Bank of Canada and the Bank of Nova Scotia.

A total of 382 companies were brought under state control under the new order, including American-owned banks and scores of other companies and 105 Cuban-owned sugar mills.

It was announced that Premier Fidel Castro will address the nation Saturday to explain why the nationalization laws were adopted.

NO IMMEDIATE REASON

There was no explanation immediately why the Canadian banking operations were exempted although a spokesman for the Royal Bank in Montreal said it might be to show that the Cuban government is opposed only to American capital having a stake in the country.

The nationalized banks will operate from now on as "agencies" of the Cuban Banco Nacional.

The law nationalizing the banks said:

"It is essential to transform the old banking structure of the nation and adapt it to new conditions of economic development created as a result of the revolutionary process."

ONLY 2 CANADIAN

The Royal Bank and the Bank of Nova Scotia are the only Canadian-owned ones with operations in Cuba. The Royal has 23 branches and the Bank of Nova Scotia eight.

The Bank of Nova Scotia which opened its first branch in Havana in 1906, employs a staff of about 250, of whom 96 per cent are Cuban. All but two of the eight managers are Cubans.

This was the first nationalization of Cuban-owned property, but the government previously had nationalized the bulk of U.S. investments in the country, including 36 sugar mills and banks, estimated to be worth a total of $1,000,000,000.

The new nationalization decree includes 50 textile factories, eight railways, 11 movie chains, 13 department stores, 16 rice mills, six distilleries and 11 coffee companies.

That is taken at least partially under government control—previously.

U.S. firms included in the decree included Dupont Inter-America Chemical Company, Pittsburgh Plate Glass International and Bohon Trading Corporation, which manufactures paper.

The U.S. embassy said about 20 U.S.-owned firms were affected.

'MAN OF WAR'

Cuba Woman
Delegate
Quits Castro

NEW YORK (AP)—A woman of the Cuban delegation to the United Nations quit her post today saying Premier Fidel Castro had turned her country into a police state where the people were living under a reign of terror.

Miss Teresa Casuso, once one of Castro's most enthusiastic supporters, said she had written the revolutionary leader a 15-page letter telling him what she now thought.

To reporters in her apartment Miss Casuso asserted that Castro's "mind and soul have been affected."

"He became embittered with great resentment against the United States because of help they were giving at the last minute to Batista and everything that smelled American was to him something hateful," Miss Casuso said.

One of three members of the delegation given the rank of ambassador by Cuba, Miss Casuso acknowledged that she had lived most of her life outside her country.

But she said her father and mother were living in Cuba, and that she feared for their safety.

Miss Casuso described Castro as a "man of war."

"He has to be at war with everybody—with the world because he's at war with himself," she said.

Ike Roving Envoy

NEW YORK (AP)—President Eisenhower has agreed to serve as a roving ambassador if Vice-President Nixon is elected president, it was reported today.

The New York Herald Tribune and the New York Times from Los Angeles, where Nixon is on a campaign tour.

White House press secretary James C. Hagerty said in Washington that he had never heard anything about a roving ambassadorship and that he had no comment.

Poll Provinces
For ConferenceBy TOM GOULD
(Times Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA—The federal government has asked the provinces to consider a tax collection system that would enable each provincial government to set its own rate of personal and corporate income tax.

Such a system has been advanced as an alternative to the present tax rental agreements, under which Ottawa alone sets the rate of taxation for all of Canada.

One official said initial reaction of the provinces is "quite cool."

In line with stated government policy, the principle of "equalization" would be maintained by the federal government under a tax collection system, utilizing taxes levied by Ottawa for its own purposes, an official said.

The plan was first set forth at a meeting of provincial and federal tax experts in Banff late last month by representatives of the federal finance department. The experts constitute a continuing committee handling the spadework for the 10 provincial governments and the federal government.

Finance Minister Donald Fleming will elaborate when the federal-provincial conference reconvenes the week of October 24.

A tax collection system is not a new concept. It was raised, and rejected, at the 1955 federal-provincial conference. And, at one time, Ottawa acted as the collection agency for the province of Ontario.

In effect the plan would mean a partial return to the prewar system of both federal and provincial income taxes. The difference, however, would be that taxpayers would make out only one set of returns instead of two, as they did then.

Under the present system Ottawa decides what the income tax levy should be, then returns a certain amount of it to the provinces under a complicated formula.

OTTAWA STANDARD

Here is how the proposed plan would work.

First, Ottawa would insist on a standard tax basis. To make the plan work easily, deduction levels would have to be the same in all provinces.

The federal government would then determine what percentage of tax it would require to meet its responsibilities. Assume this percentage to be 20 per cent of a $10,000 income, or $2,000.

A particular province would decide it needed 5 per cent of a $10,000 income, or $500, and enact income tax legislation.

Ottawa would act as the sole collection agency. It would collect a total 25 per cent from the province.

U.S. Hits At Castro
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The United States gave a blistering reply today to Fidel Castro's speech in the General Assembly. It accused the Cuban premier of trying to undermine the inter-American system and of welcoming Red intervention in Cuba's affairs.

The U.S. delegation depicted Castro as a tyrant who has denied his countrymen the right to free elections and 'deliberately tried to worsen relations between the United States and Cuba.'

It accused him of:
1. Seeking to provoke an incident over the U.S. naval base at Guantanamo.
2. Refusing to pay a single American land owner for property seized by the Cuban government.

3. Pushing the United States into a sugar embargo so the Cuban regime could charge its neighbor with economic aggression.

4. Branding all who disagreed with his regime war criminals.

Foreign Autos Will Cost More

By VICTOR J. MACKIE (Times Ottawa Bureau)
OTTAWA—Prices of British and European cars imported into Canada after Dec. 1 will go up as a result of a decision by the department of national revenue.

The increase for imported European cars will be slightly higher than that for British cars.

Effective Dec. 1 the national revenue department will increase the valuation of such imported cars leading to higher duties and taxes.

It has been estimated that on a European car with a list selling price at home of $1,500 the higher valuation could mean an increase in Canadian duty of about $80. Department officials however declined to confirm that estimate.

The new price tag on a small British car might go up by $30. The fact that the small British cars enter Canada duty free accounts for the difference.

There is a 17 1/2 per cent Canadian tariff applied against German, French, Italian and other European car imports.

This is a move towards greater protection from foreign competition for the Canadian automobile industry.

It was made by the department in the course of its regular duties of re-examining valuations and fixing them higher or lower as the case may be in regard to the product's home market.

The department had been allowing a discount of 30 per cent from the retail list price on British and European cars for valuation purposes. Commencing Dec. 1 that will be dropped to 20 per cent.

The decision by the national revenue department was made following assessment of the foreign car import picture prior to the appointment of a royal commission to inquire into the automobile industry.

ANCIENT TOTEM PRESENTED
CAMPBELL RIVER — A 100-year-old Nootka totem pole has been presented to Campbell River Historical Society by Major George Nicholson, formerly postmaster and magistrate at Zeballos, now living in Victoria.

The 32-foot totem was presented to Mr. Nicholson 22 years ago by Chief Frank Savey of the Ehatasht band which made him an honorary chieftain.

It has stood in front of Zeballos post office ever since. Its transportation from Zeballos to Campbell River was arranged by Ed Meade, president of the historical society.

It will eventually stand in front of a museum which the society hopes to build on the Tyee Plaza.

U.S. Hits At Castro
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The United States gave a blistering reply today to Fidel Castro's speech in the General Assembly. It accused the Cuban premier of trying to undermine the inter-American system and of welcoming Red intervention in Cuba's affairs.

The U.S. delegation depicted Castro as a tyrant who has denied his countrymen the right to free elections and 'deliberately tried to worsen relations between the United States and Cuba.'

It accused him of:
1. Seeking to provoke an incident over the U.S. naval base at Guantanamo.
2. Refusing to pay a single American land owner for property seized by the Cuban government.

3. Pushing the United States into a sugar embargo so the Cuban regime could charge its neighbor with economic aggression.

4. Branding all who disagreed with his regime war criminals.

'Equipment Poor' At Plowing Match

COBBLE HILL—Dairy farmer Joe Saville who was one of B.C.'s representatives at the annual Canadian plowing match in Quebec said here it was a "very poor show."

Mr. Saville said his partner, Tom Hickman of Chilliwack, was given a tractor "in such poor shape that it took a day to get it running."

Mr. Hickman missed one day of the contest because of it.

"The radiator was almost falling off and the brakes wouldn't work," Mr. Saville said. "The ground was dry, hard and filled with boulders—about the poorest piece of land a man could find."

GOING TO TOP

The complaints, made at the championship, are to be taken to the Canadian Plowing Association.

Mr. Saville, runner-up to Hickman for the B.C. title, said he went several days early to Quebec and won last crown and second place at a rural match in nearby Lachute while practising.

Later in the actual championships near Montreal he came tenth in a businessman section, while Hickman ended seventh of 12 in the championship.
